Heavy Fighting Rages in Kerch Peninsula; Result Still in Doubt

Masses of Cavalry, Tanks and Infantry Are Thrown Against Russians by German Troops

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
MOSCOW, Wednesday, May 13 (P)—Heavy fighting raged through the night in the Kerch peninsula with the Germans throwing masses of cavalry, tanks and infantry against formidable Russian forces defending that narrow gateway to the Caucasus, front line dispatches reported early today.

Red army troops under General Tolstov, who recaptured the port of Kerch from the Germans last December, were battling the Nazi onslaughts in the Eastern Crimean struggle but results of the fighting were not learned here immediately. Informants here said the outcome may be apparent in a few days.

Fighting Is Resumed
(The Rome radio broadcast a dispatch from an Italian news agency correspondent on the Eastern front which claimed "important successes" by German-Rumanian troops on the Kerch peninsula. This account said the Axis forces were "well beyond" positions from which they launched their attack.)

The fighting on the peninsula resumed yesterday in a renewal of the giant struggle in which the Russians already announced officially the destruction of 102 Nazi planes in two days.

After a Monday night lull in the Nazi drive toward the Caucasus oil wells across the narrow Kerch trait, the Soviet's midnight communique said:

"During May 12 on the Kerch peninsula severe battles took place with the enemy."

On other sectors of the front there were no significant changes.

A supplement to this communique said that reinforced German units counter-attacking on the Kalinin front northwest of Moscow had been beaten off by Soviet troops with heavy casualties to the Nazis.

Bag 102 Nazi Planes

The bag of 102 Nazi planes occurred Sunday and Monday, and presumably most of them were knocked out on the Crimean front.

The Soviets announced the first big Nazi spring offensive in the Kerch area on Monday, then yesterday afternoon tersely said that "no important changes" had occurred.

Red infantrymen were said to have broken the first German lunge (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

WPB Approves Exemption in Gas Rationing

Exclusion of Ninety-three Counties Is Satisfactory to Board

WASHINGTON, May 12 (P)—The War Production Board today approved exclusion of ninety-three counties from the Eastern Seaboard gasoline rationing area, ordered gasoline and fuel oil deliveries reduced fifty percent in Oregon and Washington, and restricted fuel oil deliveries in fifteen Midwestern states.

The counties eliminated from rationing and gasoline curtailment restrictions were those recommended Saturday by Petroleum Coordinator Ickes. They include forty-seven counties in West Virginia and in New York, twenty-five in Pennsylvania, one in Maryland and one in Virginia.

The gasoline delivery cut in Washington and Oregon, is effective June 1, and brings the two Northwestern states into line with the curtailment ordered into effect this week in seventeen Eastern states and the District of Columbia. The cut in Oregon and Washington fuel oil deliveries is effective May 15.

Until June 1, WPB provided, deliveries of gasoline in Oregon and Washington will continue at the present rate—representing a reduction of one-third under last year.

The restriction on fuel oil—first imposed outside the Eastern curtailment area—prohibits deliveries of oil for use in equipment installed after June 15, in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, and Wisconsin.

Burma Retreat Toughest of War, Eye-Witness Says

British Continually Harassed by Enemy Planes, Native Traitors

By DANIEL DELUCE

CALCUTTA, INDIA, May 12 (P)—Drunk with weariness, slogging about in both desert dust and the oozy slime of dank teak forests, and swimming muddy, swollen streams, the last companies of the British and Indian armies of Burma are fighting on toward the mountains of Assam in the toughest withdrawal of this war.

Thirteen hundred miles and thirteen days back I left them, and drove a United States Army jeep from Shwebo to Calcutta over trails fit only for goats, mules—and jeeps.

No other type of motor vehicle in Burma could have made the trip. The exhausted remnants of two Imperial divisions which have been continually in action during the whole Burma war must walk. Their twelve-ton American tanks with cheery red desert rat insignia, their six-wheeled and four-wheeled trucks, their mobile ack-ack and field artillery, simply cannot be manhandled over 150 miles of sandy waste and jungle morass to the closest, motorable Assam Pass.

Harassed by enemy fighters and bombers which for nearly seven weeks have been completely supreme in the Burma sky, knifed from ambush by blood-crazed bands of native traitors, the haggard British riflemen, tank crews and wiry Sepoys from the Indian units are now approaching within a few score miles of the rugged Assam border, which must and can be held against the invader.

Troops Poorly Equipped
How to save them? The final answer is not yet known. Back there in Burma the cruel lesson that something more than willingness to muddle through is needed to win this war is still being taught.

Boys with matchless courage are being slaughtered because they are in inadequate numbers, ill-trained, poorly equipped. The last three companies of what four months ago were proud and smart battalions are still marching to the rear in a gallant retreat.

In a thunder-shower before dawn, past the ramshackle school where the bomb-wounded lay groaning on bare tables, I drove out of Shwebo, temporary British army headquarters, by military order. I was warned that Japanese patrols might already have cut my cross-country track toward India.

Along the railway, continually attacked by Japanese planes heading quarters and wounded were moving the same morning over 200 miles up country to Myitkyina, halfway from Shwebo to the eternal snows of Tibet.

The Japanese now hold Myitkyina. The Imperials, never really trained for jungle fighting, have learned it the hard way. Burma has been a school where they either learned the jungle or died in ambush.

All for Lack of Road

Despite half a century of British rule, upper Burma never has been linked to India by even one good road. If there had been one, the Burma disaster might have been averted. Instead of one lone battalion sent to Burma from India by air after the loss of Rangoon, there might have been several divisions hurried by road to throw back the reinforced Japanese.

Swarms of mosquitos and slimy leeches covered my hands as I dug the jeep out of the mud, and rain drenched me from head to toe to give me a taste of what the British army then was encountering far to the south, without even the occasion.

'LOST' SON HOME FOR MOTHER'S DAY

Mrs. Walter Hicken of Fairview, N. J., joyfully embraced her son, Robert, 17, who came home for Mother's day after being reported missing from a merchant ship on which he served as Navy gunner. He and five shipmates were rescued after spending twenty-two days on a life raft when their ship was torpedoed in the Atlantic.

Chinese Throw Invaders Back Into Burma

Furious Stand Appears To Be Too Late To Re- trieve Burma

LONDON, May 12 (P)—The Japanese who have swept northward through Burma surged back and forth in desperate battle with the Chinese along the tortuous Burma Road in Western Yunnan Province today and met another check in their simultaneous drive toward India in the other direction.

But the unforeseen resurgence of the Chinese and the furious stand of the British both appeared to be too late either to retrieve Burma or to remove the increasing threat to India as the Japanese quickly brought up reinforcements for both main ventures, on the eastern and western forks of their drive.

Main Force Is Ousted

The Chinese early in the evening announced that the main force of the invasion column which had penetrated Yunnan through China's back door had been driven back southwestward to Wunking, on the Burma border, but a later communique acknowledged that the Japanese had brought up reinforcements and were renewing the attack.

Lower the personal exemption of a single person from $750 to $500 and of married couples from $1,500 to $1,000; retain the present $400 credit for each dependant, and the earned income credit and raise the normal tax from four per cent to six per cent; retain the present personal exemptions in computing surtaxes, the rates of which were not disclosed immediately.

The Treasury Department has proposed $600 and $1,200 exemptions, with the dependent credit cut from $400 to $300; elimination of the earned income credit and increasing the present minimum surtax rate of six per cent on the first 2,000 of net income to twelve per cent on the first $500.

Revises Schedule

Stam last week had suggested retention of present personal exemptions, a normal tax of six per cent and a surtax of eleven per cent on the first $2,000 of net income.

Members reported that the revised treasury schedule would produce about $3,400,000,000 in additional revenue; the first Stam plan $1,300,000,000 and today's program, $1,547,000,000.

They said that the committee's decision on these questions probably would become the major factor in discussion later of a general sales tax to help attain the administration's present goal of $8,700,000,000 in new revenue.

AXIS SUB STALKS SEAMEN TO PREVENT SHIP'S SALVAGE

NEW YORK, May 12 (P)—Survivors of a large Panamanian merchant vessel told today in an interview released by the Navy how they had tried in vain to outwit in lifeboats the Axis submarine which torpedoed their ship.

The seamen hoped they could board their ship and salvage her after it was attacked the night of April 16, but the submarine stuck around, too, just to make sure they didn't try it, they said.

While the strange duel of nerves continued, the torpedoed ship caught fire and disappeared beneath the Caribbean Sea.

Twenty minutes after the submarine left a plane appeared, but apparently missed the U-boat. All 4 crew members were rescued.

Retailers Can Buy Sugar from Wholesalers

BALTIMORE, May 12 (P)—Rationing officials said today retailers need not delay purchase of sugar from a wholesaler until the 100-stamp retail card was filled completely.

Some wholesalers, it was said, apparently believed a full card must be presented to them before they could deliver sugar. A retailer, the OPA officials said, must present enough stamps to cover the sugar he purchased from the wholesaler. This could be only a partially-filled card.

Germans Assume Control of All French Labor

Goering Expected To Con- fer with Petain and Laval Today

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

BERN, Switzerland, May 12 (P)—The German occupying authorities in France arrogated to themselves today vast power over French labor and coincident reports were heard here that Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering might meet tomorrow with Marshal Petain and Pierre Laval to reach "final decisions" involving France's relations with the United States and her future course in the war.

On the eve of the prospective meeting—which may steer France into military collaboration with Germany—information from occupied France tonight told of a new series of sabotage incidents against the Germans.

These accounts said saboteurs in night sorties hurled bombs into hotels used by the Germans as barracks. The incidents followed others of the past ten days, inspired apparently by the appointment of General Oberg, one of Heinrich Himmler's right hand men in the Gestapo, as head of the Paris Security Department.

General Otto Von Stuepnagel, military commandant of occupied France, promulgated the decree by which authority to increase working hours in France plants was taken into Nazi hands and under which all French employers were ordered to turn in the names of workmen who, as a result of these longer periods, would be available for other labor.

To Change Working Hours

Although the old popular front labor laws had long since been annulled, much of French industry has been operating on a forty-hour week and sometimes no more than twenty hours, in order to spread the limited employment available.

It appeared that the Nazis intended to increase their supply of forced labor simply by throwing out many of those presently employed in French industry and taking them in hand through the reports required to be made by employers.

As to France's foreign affairs, it was reported in foreign diplomatic quarters here that Otto Abetz, Hitler's personal representative in occupied Paris, had met chief of government Laval yesterday on the French demarcation line at Moulins to arrange for a conference with Goering.

In this projected conference—so it was understood—Laval was expected to say the fateful word for France on these matters:

1. Whether France was to reject the request of the United States for guarantees from the local government of Vichy-controlled Martinique that neither that island nor other French possessions in the area would be used by the Axis or in any other way to menace America; and whether France thus was to break with the United States.

2. How far France was to go in military collaboration with the Axis.

Petain Cancels Vacation

3. Whether there was to be at least a provisional settlement of French issues with Italy, these quarrels having long been an obstruction to Germany's efforts to get full cooperation from France against her old friends Britain and the United States.

All these were assumed to have been those affairs of "imperial concern" as Vichy described them, which yesterday had caused Marshal Petain to interrupt a holiday on the Riviera and hurry back to Vichy.

Series of Oklahoma Plane Crashes Bring Death to Seven Army Fliers

Two Bombers Collide near Oklahoma City Base Killing Four

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 12 (P)—Army training flights brought death to seven pilots and injury to two others in Oklahoma today in a series of widely-separated crashes.

Two bombers from Will Rogers air base here, flying as part of a formation of three, collided about fifteen miles south of the base and burst into flames as they fell.

Four men died in the crash and two others were injured slightly in parachuting to safety.

The dead were identified by air base officers as:

Lieut. Chester P. Toier, 22, Grants Pass, Ore., pilot of one plane.

Three Bodies Recovered; Almost No Hope Is Held For 50 Others Trapped

Terrific Blast Rocks Big Mechanized Mine near Mor- gantown, W. Va.; May Be Many Hours before More Bodies Are Recovered, Rescue Crews Say; Seventy Escape Death as They Flee Workings

OSAGE, W. Va., May 12 (P)—A terrific blast deep in a big West Virginia coal mine apparently took fifty-three lives today, with three bodies recovered and the word of rescue workers there was almost no hope for fifty others trapped underground.

Seventy men escaped death when they fled from the workings.

A crew coming out at 10:30 p. m. announced it had at last reached the scene of the explosion and discovered ten more bodies. The members said another crew would bring them out shortly.

Oxygen-helmeted rescuers coming out of the mine reported the operation badly shattered near the center of the explosion and said it might be many hours before more bodies were brought out.

T. E. Griffith, U. S. Bureau of Mines engineer who acted as spokesman for the Christopher Coal Company, confirmed that there were 110 men in the pit when the disaster occurred about 2:30 p. m. The mine is about four miles from the university city of Morgantown.

House Votes Big
Pay Increase for Buck PrivatesApprentice Seamen Also
To Receive $50 a Month
under Terms of Measure

WASHINGTON, May 12 (P)—A big raise for buck privates and apprentice seamen to bring their pay to $50 a month was voted tentatively by the House today but final passage of the measure increasing the pay of the fighting forces was put off until tomorrow.

As passed by the Senate, the bill would have raised the pay of privates and apprentice seamen to $42 a month but the House adopted, 102 to 40, an amendment by Rep. Rankin (D-Miss.) boosting the figure by $8. The amendment also provided that first class privates and second class seamen should receive $54 a month, $6 more than the Senate version.

Buck privates now receive $21 a month to start, $30 after four months and $40 after their first year; apprentice seamen get $30. The present base pay of first class privates and second class seamen is $36.

Roll Call Today

While the House changes are subject to a roll-call vote tomorrow, members of the Military committee indicated they would not seek one on the theory that the members would not record themselves as opposed to the increase. They expressed confidence they could restore the Senate figure later when the bill would add $300,000,000 a year to the military payroll for an army and navy the size of last January's but Rep. Fish (R-N.Y.) said that the measure might cost as much as $1,000,000,000, depending on the ultimate size of the army.

Rankin advanced his amendment with the suggestion that it would avert "a bonus fight" after the war. A substitute amendment by Rep. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

State's Civilian
Defense Problem
Will Be StudiedGovernor O'Connor, General Reckord and OCD
Director To Meet

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 12 (P)—Governor O'Connor, Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord and Judge Rowland K. Adams will meet Thursday to attempt to straighten out Maryland's perplexing civilian defense problem.

Judge Adams, regional OCD director, said recently there was no central authority in the Baltimore metropolitan defense area to coordinate defense organizations in the area. At that time he said a legislative act would be necessary to centralize defense authority in the area.

O'Connor declared he "would not hesitate" to call a special session if the safety of Marylanders depended on it. But he added he wanted to learn whether the army would direct both military and civilian defense personnel in emergencies.

He sent Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the Eastern military defense area, a telegram asking clarification of the situation. The general advised the governor that "the planning for local protection of localities not defended by frontier forces assigned to sector commanders" is the duty of corps area commanders.

The governor's office, interpreting General Drum's reply said civilian defense organizations would come under the direction of General Reckord, Third Corps Area commander in emergencies. But General Reckord was quoted yesterday (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Reaction of Vichy To Martinique Is Ignored by U. S.

Government Is Interested Only in Conference with Admiral Robert

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP)—Secretary Hull made it plain today that so far as this government is concerned Vichy's reaction has no bearing upon the current negotiations at Martinique to prevent Axis use of that island or other Caribbean French possessions to menace America.

The Washington government, he indicated to reporters, is interested only in the actual discussions with Admiral Georges Robert, the French high commissioner at Martinique. He said the government was not endeavoring to follow any other phase of the Martinique situation.

In Vichy, Marshal Petain was in consultation with Nazi-dominated Pierre Laval, the chief of government, after interrupting a vacation on the Riviera to return to the capital.

The reasons for Petain's action was not disclosed, and, under the circumstances there was much conjecture that it was motivated by the Martinique situation. In combination, perhaps, with the recent British seizure of Madagascar.

The discussions at Martinique were begun on Saturday, when Admiral John H. Hoover, commanding naval officer in the area, and Samuel Reber, the state department's assistant chief of the division of European affairs, arrived at the French-owned island.

They presented a formula under which Robert would guarantee that Martinique, Guadeloupe and French Guiana would not be used by the Axis or in any way menace the cause of the United Nations.

In return, the French flag would continue to fly over those colonies and Admiral Robert would be recognized as their ultimate governing official.

O'Connor Praises School Teachers

Governor Commends Instructors for Help in Rationing Work

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 12 (AP)—Governor O'Connor, commenting today on the opening of the Maryland Gasoline rationing registration program, said he wished to thank publicly every school teacher in the state who has participated in the work.

O'Connor said, "high praise must be given all of the teachers for their splendid and efficient service. Reports reaching me from every section of the state convey the same messages of their unselfish performance, and I cannot commend our teaching staffs too highly."

"Now that demand for their assistance has again been made to register motorists and others for gasoline, I am sure the same polite, efficient helpfulness will be manifested. In many places volunteers from the parent-teacher associations and other groups helped during the rush periods, and to each and every one of these I extend my personal thanks."

"It is certainly most gratifying to know that our teachers and others stand ready to donate their time and services in this emergency to assist the public generally in this national effort to maintain life as nearly normal as war conditions will permit."

ing to counterfeit stamps worth $52,500 had they been valid.

James J. Maloney, supervising agent of the New York division of the Secret Service, said that sales of the alleged counterfeit stamps, manufactured in 25-cent denominations, had not yet been started but that he had no doubt the ring contemplated selling them on a nation-wide scale.

Maloney said secret service men and postal inspectors had trailed the group since February but had withheld any action until today "in order to get them all." Plates from which the stamps were printed and 210,000 unperfected stamps also were seized, he said.

Chief Assistant U. S. Attorney Howard P. Corcoran said he would ask indictments of a federal grand jury shortly and added:

"This conspiracy, if allowed to run, might have had very serious repercussions. Fortunately, the Secret Service men stepped in time and none of these stamps got out to the public. These got over, not mitigate the crime."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

A Churchill prediction that a new "hurricane" of Nazi attack must soon end the "stormy lull" in Russia seems verified within forty-eight hours of its utterance. On the slender, blood-drenched finger of Kerch peninsula, the Crimean backdoor to the Caucasus, the first German blows have fallen. That vindicates also the judgment of many allied observers that it is falling oil reserves which must dominate Hitler strategy and hold out the brightest hope to shorten the war.

Whether the fight for the Kerch Bridgehead to the Caucasus proves a feint or the actual beginning of a new German attempt to sweep around the Rostov corner, there seems no question that the most powerful concentration of Red army units to defend that vital southern flank. Berlin radio commentators hint at a vast Nazi turning movement impending on the "Khar'kov-Kerch front." Military onlookers in Bern estimate that Hitler has mustered 2,000,000 men for a supreme effort to break through into the Caucasus.

London discounts that report. Churchill himself indicated, however, that Russian and Allied staffs still lacked two days ago any positive information as to where and when the test would come.

Weather conditions in the Crimea and northward to Khar'kov have been suitable for two weeks or more for major operations. By every straw in the wind it is along the southern flank from Khar'kov to the Kerch peninsula the Russian high command has expected the German offensive to develop.

Unquestionably the Russians know more than Churchill would care to reveal of Nazi offensive dispositions and have deployed their own forces accordingly. Since the surprise Russian recapture of the Kerch Bridgehead, Marshal Timoshenko's troops south of Khar'kov and holding the Kerch gateway have been significantly aloof from the Red army winter offensive operations farther north. They have obviously been busy with defense preparations against the German drive that may now be opening.

Recapture of the Kerch Bridgehead as a preliminary to a massive German effort to turn the Rostov corner is essential to the Nazis. There seems small doubt that the Nazi offensive now on Kerch peninsula is the beginning of a new battle of Rostov which could bring the Nazi-Russian conflict to another crisis within a short time and evolve into one of the most decisive clashes of the war.

It is cushy, well-fed, comfortably bedded. It goes on dancing and drinking.

Yet back in Upper Burma at this hour the dwindling columns of dirt-raked, khaki-clad troops are still fighting for their lives—one day nearly drowned in a torrential rain.

They have been fighting like this ever since January, when they were given the impossible job of defending Burma's wide-open, Eastern frontier against an enemy more numerous, more skilled in jungle warfare, and continually reinforced by land, air and sea.

What happened in Burma is a military tragedy for the United Nations, as bitter as those of Singapore, the Indies and the Philippines.

For the handful of Imperial soldiers who lost Lower Burma and for the few under-strength Chinese divisions who stemmed the Japanese conquest for more than a month in Central Burma there can be nothing but praise.

Air Support Faded

They were ordered to do the impossible. Their casualties were appalling. Most of the stocky, singing Britishers whom I saw hiking into the Salween line in January, and the smiling Chinese legions deploying around Toungoo in March, were killed in combat.

Some cut their way out of the death pockets, and always there was a temporary new line established farther back. Always it was weaker than the last one.

For hundreds of miles it was fight, withdraw, fight again.

Every mile backward the air support faded until in April there was virtually nothing left. The enemy and the traitors increased until thousands liberally equipped with mortars and tommy-guns were thrown into the push.

The fall of Rangoon on March 8 doomed Burma and the British knew it, officers and men. They kept on fighting, for surrender was not in their vocabulary.

Three Pilots Are Killed in Crash Of Big Transport

Quick-Thinking of Army Sergeant Saves Own and Ten Other Lives

MILE CITY, Mont., May 12 (AP)—A quick-thinking army sergeant saved his own and ten other lives today in the crash of a Northwest Airlines transport which fatally injured three airline pilots.

Oversteering the airport, the plane smashed into a ravine half a mile beyond the air field and burst into flames.

As soon as it came to rest, Sgt. Carl Dinius of Miles City battered through a window while Lieut. Alfred Albert Allen of Cottage Grove, Oregon, and two civilians passengers pushed at the plane's jammed door.

U. S. Establishes Fund To Purchase Motorists' Tires

No Immediate Indication That Owners Will Be Compelled To Sell

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP)—The government established a $150,000 fund today to purchase new and used tires from American motorists, but withheld for the present the details of the program.

Secretary of Commerce Jones said the plans would be disclosed after they had been worked out by the Office of Price Administration and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. There was no immediate indication that automobile owners would be compelled to sell any tires to the government, although this has been suggested in some congressional quarters.

Jones indicated that some of the tires purchased by the Defense Supplies Corporation, RFC subsidiary, would be held by county tire rationing boards for resale at prices set by OPA to persons needing them for essential transportation.

His announcement preceded a statement by the Office of Emergency Management warning that motorists were "riding themselves off the roads" at an average rate of three and one-half per cent a month. OEM explained this was the rate at which rubber was wearing from automobile and truck tires and commented:

"When that rubber is gone, there will be no more for a long time."

Officials indicated the order was designed primarily to curtail installations of new equipment. It does not apply to new domestic cooking stoves.

At the same time, WPB amended its previous fifty per cent limitation on gasoline and fuel oil in the east to make it effective May 15, instead of May 16, as originally provided. Thus, the curtailment in deliveries will begin on the same day that gasoline rationing starts.

is to take care of privates and other service men in the low-pay brackets, it also would benefit officers by increasing their rental and subsistence allowances. It affects the army, navy, marine corps, coast guard, coast and geodetic survey public health service and nursing service.

McNutt Endorses Measure

Chairman May (D-Ky) said the military committee would follow up the pay boost bill with the proposal for government payments to dependents of fighting men. Some committee members said the two bills together would remove many of the objections against drafting married men with dependents.

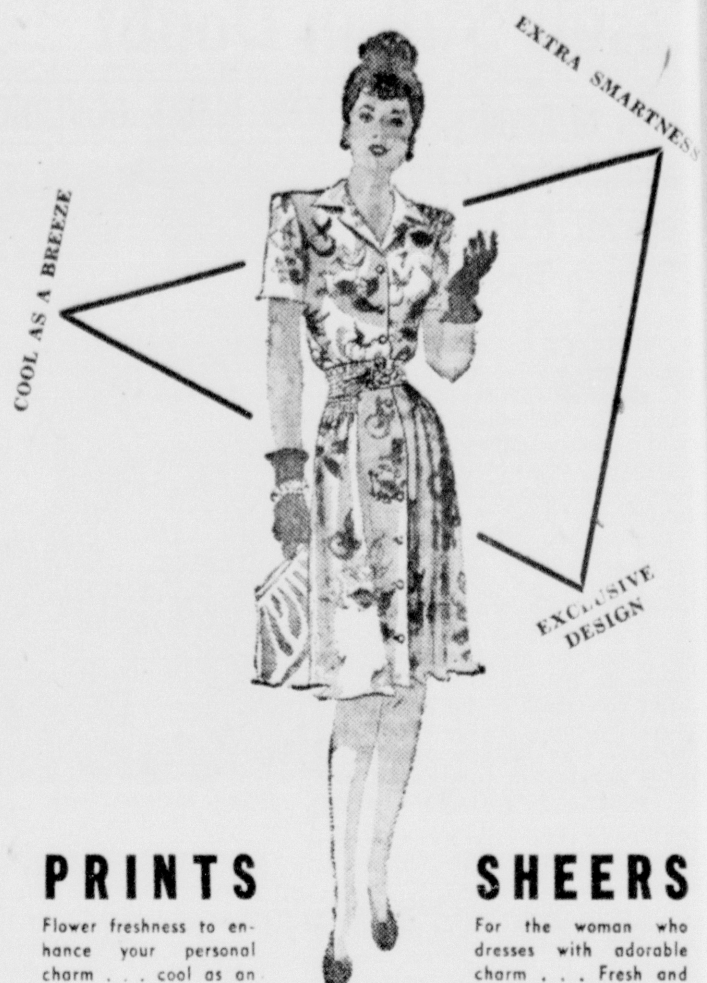

Federal Security Administrator

Paul V. McNutt, endorsing the measure, told the committee the financial care of service men's dependents was "a federal responsibility."

"The effectiveness of war operations depends in large part upon civilian and military morale," McNutt declared. "A vital factor in upholding this morale is some reasonable maintenance of families of men engaged in military service. The man in the armed forces must be free from anxiety about how his family is making ends meet."

Education of Public on Health Rules Has Been Stimulated by Present War

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I have been talking to some people from England who advanced the idea that the war will produce a great awakening in the public consciousness about public health. War conditions have caused the civilian population to depend so much upon the government for distribution and rationing of food products and medical care that for the first time the population is aware of what the medical profession and public health authorities have been preaching for such a long time.

This is especially true of maternal and child health care. I have heard, for instance, of a child in Scotland near Stirling castle where the entire medical case of the district is directed by one health officer, six deputy medical assistants, twelve health visitors, fifty district nurses and midwives.

Immunizing Treatments

In time of war private rights are relinquished and whereas a good many people object to having their children immunized against diphtheria, typhoid and smallpox in peace time, the health department does not stop to argue in war time but starts in and make a thorough survey and immunizes them just the same.

The crank who believes that smallpox, diphtheria and typhoid vaccinations only inject poison is gently but firmly put down in a back seat and given little or no attention. In Stirling county 7,000 children were immunized in one month and a systematic search was being made to catch all delinquents. The British nation could not afford to have one unnecessary epidemic.

This program, however, it seems to me is one that has been equaled in many American states which have the advantage of having a bigger health department. In some states diphtheria immunization has been carried out in school children nearly 100 percent. I believe, however, that we still could tighten up on our smallpox vaccination in the United States. Like Great Britain, we cannot afford to have one unnecessary epidemic.

Maternity Health Act

The Scottish Maternity Health Act of 1937 would be for us quite revolutionary, although a similar basic law has been in operation in Sweden for some time. Applicable to all women alike who may apply for care, the law provides for the services of physician and skilled midwife for prenatal care and delivery in the patient's home, for consultation of a obstetrician, for the attendance of the midwife as a maternity nurse if the delivery is conducted by the physician.

The rule is that all women shall be examined by the physician three times before the period of birth, and in all cases, whether delivered by a midwife or a physician, within twelve hours after delivery. The English have had to evacuate so many prospective mothers from areas which are subject to bombing and provide housing facilities for them in safe districts that this state care has become a natural, and in fact, an inevitable outgrowth.

Educational Influence

I cannot help but think that all of this will have a profound educational influence in public health matters. Most people fail to conform to hygienic rules largely because of ignorance. When once they see a health rule in operation, its common sense appeals to them and they are willing and even anxious to carry out all the provisions the next time it comes up.

It is hard to believe that a woman who has been examined regularly before the baby was born would be willing to go back to the old rule of not calling the doctor until the birth is imminent. When the public finds that diphtheria preventive inoculation and smallpox and typhoid vaccinations do no harm, they will not only submit to the procedures, but will insist upon their being carried out throughout an entire community as a matter of self-protection.

Questions and Answers

Y. T.—If an adult person does not drink milk, do the teeth become softer and more likely to decay?

Answer: The value of milk in the prevention of tooth decay is simply that it furnishes calcium and phosphorus. Inasmuch as these are present in other foods, especially vegetables and fruits, they can be substituted for the milk.

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

COMBINING VICTORY VEGETABLES AND FRUIT GARDENS

The Government has urged gardeners who have available space to grow not only victory vegetables but fruits as well. Where economy of space is a factor, dwarf-strained fruit trees, called Espalier trees, serve the purpose, taking almost no ground or air space, spreading out their branches flat against a wall or fence. They are beautiful when in flower and yield excellent large fruit, often utilizing space otherwise wasted.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, where a vegetable garden is bordered by a fence, these Espalier trees can be trained on the fence, for they will not cast shadows on the vegetables. There are many shapes to choose—some fan-shaped, others a U-form or a double U-form, or the four-, six-, or eight-armed Palmette styles. When the vertical cordon is used they can be planted as close as a foot apart.

These practical yet decorative Espalier trees are available in apple, pear, plum, peach, nectarine, cherry, quince and apricot.

Republicans Face an Important Civic Duty

REPUBLICAN CLUBS of Allegany county, both of men and women, are to have a rally at 8 o'clock Thursday evening at the Knights of Malta hall on Prospect square in this city. It should have a good attendance and this newspaper, as a party spokesman, so urges.

This is for the simple reason that our constitutional processes—the things upon which is based the American way of life for which we are pouring out our best treasures of manhood and wealth on the battle fields—must be preserved. And they can be preserved only if we continue our interest in those fundamentals and support them with faith and understanding. The holding of our regular elections is one of the essentials, and due preparation for it is a corollary.

We have been hearing the argument, if such it may be called, that the elections this fall should be virtually suspended—that a truce should be called and that all existing representatives in government should be retained for the duration without contest. The elections cannot be suspended as they must be held in accordance with our fundamental laws. As for beating around the bush and letting them, in effect, go by default, that would mean only a tacit repudiation of the constitutional processes we are required to protect and preserve.

The elections can and should be held with friendly, intelligent contests and without deviating a whit from patriotic endeavor. Indeed, they will serve to promote that endeavor. No candidate for any political party will dare to ask for support without pledging full support of the president as commander in chief of our armed forces in prosecuting the war to a victorious conclusion. Hence, the question of prosecuting the war with full determination and might is not and cannot be an issue.

Republican voters can rest assured, however, that their old political opponents, now in the saddle, will utilize this truce idea for their own advantage. There can be no escaping that fact. Why, then, should one political party give up partisan interest and effort if the other will not? That scarcely comports with the spirit of good American sportsmanship to say nothing of the fundamentals involved.

But, a more important consideration lies in the fact, which has been pretty well established, that many of our representatives in government, the legislative branch particularly, have been far behind the people in the development of an all-out war program and in policies contributing thereto. Surely the importance of present events calls for the commissioning of those who will more promptly and truly reflect the popular will.

We shall be hearing much to the effect that it is dangerous to change governments in any way when a war is on or in times of crisis. That old saying about swapping horses in the middle of the stream will be dragged out and worn to a frazzle. But, is this wholly true? It has been done before and to great advantage. In the spring of 1918, the Allied cause was suffering reverses in the First World War, but we conducted our campaigns as usual and the Allies won in the fall, the tide of battle turning while our political campaigns were in full swing. England, in the darkest hour of its struggle in the present conflict, went through a complete governmental shakeup, and events have shown that it was a most desirable and necessary change.

The candidates who will—and should—appear in the campaign this fall and who will be elected will have a great deal to do with how the war is carried on and how support is given the program through tax, labor, production, inflation and other contributing policies. The question here is whether these important matters should be left to mediocre persons, to professional politicians who bend like a reed at the blowing of every group pressure breeze, or whether these things should be placed in the hands of those who will look to the national interests first, last and all the time.

Here, indeed, is a duty of citizenship that should not be evaded now. For, if representative government cannot function at its best in a time like this, then it is questionable whether it is worth preserving. If we fail to let it function, the consequences might be so great that it could not survive, at least not in the way in which it has so far enabled us to enjoy the blessings of liberty.

Paul Mallon, in his column on this page today, observes that "when voting is light and issues dim, it is easier for well-organized groups to win," for which reason the administration forces are looking carefully to their political fences. That is something, indeed, worth digesting on the part of all Allegany Republicans.

Stronger and Bolder

THE UNITED STATES is growing stronger. This improvement is in the air and on the sea. It is on both the major oceans. And as it grows stronger in combat power, it is also sending thousands of men to AEF bases and building up depots of arms in numerous foreign places. Moreover, it is stepping up its lease-lend deliveries.

As it grows stronger, it grows bolder. Only a strong as well as a courageous American force would have dared to attack the formidable Japanese armada which it engaged off Northern Australia. The result was the greatest naval-air battle of the war, with more than a score of Jap ships sunk or damaged.

That the United States is growing bolder is shown in demands upon local officials for possession of French West Indian territory, developments in which Vichy was completely ignored.

The United States now dares to fight on two fronts at once, and that is exactly the opposite of what the Germans believed. The American people are not soft, and that is exactly the opposite of what the militaristic castes in the enemy lands have been telling their peoples. When Uncle Sam's forces have even an approximate chance of success, they wade in, fight like blazes, and invariably better the enemy, man for man and ship for ship.

The South Pacific sea battle is one of the milestones of the war. The Japs thought they had the United States entirely occupied with vital aid to Russia. They thought that it had diverted too much of its constantly mounting air power to the RAF. They failed to recognize the courage of Bataan and Corregidor as an accurate sampling of American mettle.

Loss of the Philippines was inevitable after the stunning blow dealt to the fleet and air force at Honolulu. But what the Axis hadn't calculated was the national reaction. The United States is not, as Goebbels boasted, "another weak, effeminate France." There may be more reverses for the United States, but not many more. There may be new Axis terrors. But the tide is turning. The honors now go to the United States Navy. Soon they will go also to the nation's land and air forces.

Gifts Demonstrate Our Solidarity

THE EYES of the Axis rulers must turn green with envy when they hear of the large amount of outright donations made by the citizens of this country to Uncle Sam.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., secretary of the Treasury, reveals that 2401 persons contributed a total of $65,151 to the government during the month of April. This is the largest number of donations in any month since the fall of France.

Since June, 1940, a total of $614,670 in gifts has been received by the government from 13,895 persons. Of this amount all save $45,350 was donated since Pearl Harbor. The White House has reported receipt of an amazing number of checks recently, one of them for $75,000.

These donors demonstrate the existence of a remarkable feeling of solidarity between citizen and government. They will always have the satisfaction of knowing that they aided their nation in its hour of greatest peril.

The fellow who used to rock the canoe for a laugh now turns on a light to see what a blackout looks like.

Freeing of retail prices of 30,000 items hardly makes this the spring of the big thaw.

I Saw a Moon in a Tree

By MARSHALL MASLIN

It happened in another war, on a front unlike any that our boys fight on today. And on that front Tommy and I were lost, in the summer of 1918, in another France. We knew where we were, but we didn't know where our outfit had gone. . . . It had been in a little town near Bar-le-Duc when Tommy and I went on leave, but when we came back after fourteen pleasant days — it was gone. Another outfit of soldiers was there, fellows who looked at us curiously and sat in our places in the White Horse Cafe, and there were officers staking around who actually expected us to salute them. . . . We wandered around, asking if anybody knew where our outfit had gone, but nobody could tell us.

So we were lost and we felt lost. We felt like lost puppies, but finally we got up and shook ourselves like those same lost puppies and hung baggage all over our shoulders and beat it out of town. . . . We hooked a ride to Bar-le-Duc, had words in that war city with a hard-boiled M. P. sergeant, hid out on a train that was headed for the front. . . . Nothing is more pathetic than a soldier in a strange land who hasn't a franc in his pocket, who wants to get back to his fellows and doesn't know where they are.

At last the train stopped and Tommy and I got off, tightened our belts and hiked out toward that familiar, friendly section of the horizon that was reddest with artillery fire. We were hungry and tired. We'd reached the point where we didn't care. The road was lonely and the fields were dry. We saw nobody and heard nothing but the booming of guns; night dropped on us like a curtain and the sky was black. We slogged along discouraged—and suddenly I looked up and saw something I've never been able to forget. . . . Against that red horizon, I saw a small lean tree, bare of leaves, killed by gas I suppose. It made a black silhouette against the dull flame of war.

But that wasn't all. Tangled somehow in the meager branches of the dead tree I saw the full moon, hanging like a lantern, red and gold and yellow. And I still remember that tree and that bloody background and that golden moon. I've forgotten disgust and anger and fear and other ugly things from that war, but I still remember that touch of beauty that came to Tommy and me when we thought we were lost.

May the boys who come back to us after this war have some such memory as that. It will be of some little help in other years.

Bond Campaign Is Seen as Pattern For Check-Off

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, May 12 — Few employers believed that when they began to co-operate with the Treasury department to carry on a plan for voluntary deductions of money from payrolls to help employees buy defense bonds a precedent would be set up whereby another government agency would cite such patriotic effort as part justification for ordering the so-called "check-off" on dues of labor unions.

Yet that is what has happened. Employers who have co-operated may feel they now are being drawn by governmental agencies into doing something of a quasi-political nature. There is no less logic in asking the employer to deduct money from payrolls to maintain membership in the Democratic or Republican party than to maintain memberships and collect the dues for any labor union.

Relations Cordial

The National War Labor Board in a recent decision, in the case of the White Sewing Machine Corporation, admits that the union has never had any difficulty collecting dues or maintaining memberships because all but four of the 850 employees of the company are members in good standing. The board says that "relations between the union and the company have been cordial and there is no claim made by the union that the company has in any way sought to undermine it, nor is there any competing union in the picture. . . . The union asks for a straight check-off arrangement." The board then makes the following comment in its decision:

"The company presently makes deductions from the pay of its employees for the following other purposes: social security, insurance, hospitalization, defense bonds and membership dues for a social club. . . .

"After listening to extended argument and discussion on the entire issue of union security, the panel is unanimously of the opinion that no hardship would be entailed if a provision were included in the contract providing for a voluntary and revocable dues assignment."

Practicability Uppermost

The War Labor Board, therefore, decides the issue not on the principle involved but on whether it would be practicable from a book-keeping viewpoint to grant a check-off. There never has been the slightest objection to a check-off by employers on the ground that it would actually be inconvenient to collect such dues. The objection goes rather to the fact that when an employer collects dues for the union, the employer is placed in the position of endorsing the union, supporting it and actually keeping it going financially.

The next step then is the closed shop, whereby the employer must agree to accept the wishes of the officers of the monopoly in his plant. They may then tell him whom he may or may not hire, or else they tell him that he must advise anyone he does not hire that membership in the union is compulsory at the end of thirty days or so.

The Wagner Labor Relations law was heralded as a Magna Charta of labor on the ground that company-financed unions were hereafter to be taboo. But now it appears that the company can grant financial favors to a union if the union happens to be affiliated with a national organization and is in active political alliance with the administration that is in power.

Principle Discarded

The principle that the union should stand on its own feet, collect its own dues and maintain its own membership on its merits as a beneficial labor organization has been discarded. Instead, the union now leans on the employer who is compelled by the United States government itself to act as a collecting agent for private organizations.

The check-off was originally defended by the War Labor Board, as was maintenance of membership, on the ground that unions might

Russians Are Better Equipped for Gas Warfare than Germans, Mallon Reports

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 12 — Mr. Churchill could also have said, if the Nazis start a gas warfare, they will find the Reds better equipped than they to handle that vicious method of scattering death in all directions. The Russians have been working on this unused phase of war for fifteen years. That far back they organized a group known as the "Asovakhim", consolidating their civilian chemical warfare division and a civilian aviation corps. They had 4,000,000 members in 1928, perhaps 20,000,000 today.

No Undermining

Also, since the record shows the company has been admittedly immune from any charge of trying to undermine the union, the reason given several weeks ago for granting union security and check-offs has disappeared. The truth is the War Labor Board is not operating on any general formula or principle except one—namely, that labor unions must be coddled and given almost everything they demand, because otherwise they would not co-operate in producing goods in the war effort.

The inference is that the unions presumably would defy the government and the board and that, to be kept in line, their demands in the main for union security must be met. This is not an enviable position in which to place trade unionism in America during the most critical war in our whole history.

The Banning Of a Magazine

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

The banning of the magazine Social Justice from the mails marks the first overt move of the government against any publication during the war. It can hardly be denied that the government had strong justification for the move. In many editorials and in the general tenor of its articles, Social Justice has cast doubt on Allied war aims and tended to undermine public support of the war. It should be obvious that a nation waging a war for its life cannot tolerate a regular press campaign of that sort.

The ban on Social Justice bears a superficial resemblance to the British effort to suppress the London Daily Mirror, which has caused a bitter controversy in England. The similarity is only on the surface. The Daily Mirror printed editorials and cartoons insulting to the British government as a means of spurring it to a greater war effort. Social Justice has attacked the Washington government and America's allies. One can condemn the British government's action while not defending Social Justice.

The procedure against Social Justice should carry its own warning against abuses. That case must not be made an easy precedent for the banning of magazines and newspapers which criticize the government. If a free press means anything, it means the right to criticize the government win times of war or peace. In fact, criticism in wartime may be far more vital than in peace-time.

There are powerful men in Washington today impatient of the slightest breath of criticism against the government, and prompt to denounce as "Axis agents" anybody who disagrees with their notions of war policy and post-war reconstruction. If such tyrannical notions triumph, we shall have lost the war at home whatever the fortunes of our armed forces abroad.

Paul Mallon

Churchill's warning will probably be effective on the Nazis, for the above reasons and others. Doubt is held here that this crudest method of fighting will be taken up by any nation except as a last desperate—and no doubt useless—resort.

Gas is not generally recognized as an efficient military weapon. It is hard to handle. Troops at the front can use it only when conditions are ideal, when the wind is right and can be guaranteed to stay right. Advancing troops shun its use because it would be a hindrance to their forward movement. Retreating troops can use it effectively only in the form of mines, left behind after withdrawal. (The Russians are adept at mine warfare.)

Warning Probably Effective

It can be dropped from airplanes, but it will be effective only when ground conditions (which the bombers can hardly know) are suitable.

All known types rise only thirty feet from the ground so all persons who can get above the second story of city buildings can count themselves secure. Furthermore, a gas mask is almost a complete defense.

Politics at Low Ebb

Popular tension over the war is strangely not extending into the primary elections. Involved congressmen here see signs of less than usual interest in politics back home this year.

One senator whose renomination primary is only three weeks off says he cannot tell whether he will win, because the prospect is for the lightest vote in years. Others say they find it hard to get people to listen to politics.

The South Dakota primary last week registered only about two-thirds of the normal vote, although sitting Senator Bulow was defeated. Two years ago in the gubernatorial race 159,000 votes were cast; this year only 107,000 (with a few precincts still missing).

was counted upon to get the people out for a record vote.

When voting is light and issues dim, it is easier for well-organized groups to win. This acknowledged condition has caused many an old antagonist of the administration to look more carefully to his fences.

Senator Wheeler, furthermore, is saying he detects a concerted effort by someone to destroy isolationists, either through politics or other means. He says he looks for mean campaigns where isolationists are involved.

Jap Invasion Questioned

The great fleet victory off Australia was too sparingly reported at first to cause authorities here to accept the popular deductions—such interpretations as one indicating the Japs were then bent on invasion of Australia or were moving down to the New Hebrides islands, New Caledonia or New Zealand to cut our lines of communications.

Most official sources decided to wait until details were available before reaching definite conclusions. What puzzled them most was the fact that only a few Jap transports were sunk. If an invasion movement anywhere had been broken up, they figured there would have been more.

Burma Road Too Risky

The Japs are already reported shying away from the Burma road as a line of advance into China. Its tortuous mountain winding way will enable the Chinese demolition squads to take heavy toll with dynamite and mines if the Jap drive toward Kunming is pursued in that direction.

A direct assault through Yunnan province from Indo-China will probably be started by the Japs instead. While there are no good roads in that area, the possibilities of concentrated Chinese defense are not as threatening.

Turning Backward

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

We note with mingled nostalgia and surprise that the stereotypical viewer as a form of parlor entertainment is coming back. Of course, it wasn't called that in the ad we saw the other day in a large metropolitan daily. The modern name is New Tru-Vue, a hand picture stereo viewer, but it is the same thing without a doubt.

The pink plush binding and the gilt frame are gone. The new gadget is black, plastic and streamlined, but it is the same. If there is any doubt about it, the choice of subjects should settle the matter. Quietly at home you may take your pick of Aztec ruins, Niagara Falls, the London zoo, Pikes peak, the Grand canyon and the World's Fair, probably the one at St. Louis and not the one at New York. At least we hope so.

If this war for the future means a return to the past, we want to go the whole distance—stereoscopic slides, the St. Louis fair, sugar cookies and lemonade for refreshment and everybody home and in bed by 10 o'clock. We could do, too, with a horsehair sofa, a carved walnut whistnet and a trusty horse—especially the horse, pink roses on the carpet and catcalls over Grand-paw's picture on the wall.

Quarrels Go On In Washington In Spite of War

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

All isn't harmony in wartime Washington. There are differences of opinion. Some of 'em amount to mere arguments. Others are pretty ugly quarrels.

State Secretary Cordell Hull's disagreement with Henry A. Wallace not as vice president but as chairman of the Board of Economic Warfare, belongs in the former classification.

Henry's proposition was that his board was entitled to make dickers with foreign countries, for supplies we need. Cordell contended that Henry was justified in telling what we need and disposing of it according to his own judgment after we get it. But it's the State department's prerogative, he said, to do the actual negotiating.

Welles Overlooked

One consideration was that most of our buying's from Latin America at present, no other part of the world having any local surplus to dispose of. And Henry rated himself as a Latin American expert, having visited there intensively, having learned Spanish and being in process of learning Portuguese. He figured that he knew more about that kind of business than the State department did. He omitted to take into his calculation the fact that Cordell has, at his elbow, State Undersecretary Sumner Welles, who's served diplomatically below the equator, whose experience is practical as well as academic, and who, maybe, can negotiate as well as Henry can.

Decision to Hull

Secretary Hull got the decision, from the White House. The discussion, while reciprocally, quite positive, was gentlemanly, though, as might have been expected, from Secretary Hull and Vice President Wallace.

You can't say quite as much for the name-calling contest between Director Lowell Mellett, of the Office of Government Reports, and Senator Harry P. Byrd, of the Rules committee of the upper congressional chamber.

That is, Lowell accused Harry of having "willfully falsified" concerning him. Harry described Lowell as an "arrogant bureaucrat."

Of all the administration's publicity men, Lowell's attracted so much lightning in his direction as to arouse a certain amount of curiosity. Why did such a volume of it head his way?

Too Numerous

No doubt our government publicity agencies are too numerous.

There are, independently of one another, half a dozen of 'em—one, unquestionably being a sufficiency. Included, notably, is Archibald McLeish's Office of Facts and Figures, and Archibald's been panned as a superfluous, but not as an "arrogant bureaucrat."

Every department and departmental subdivision and independent agency has its publicity group, too.

Senator Robert A. Taft estimates their personnel at 5,000. Against consolidation of 'em I don't argue for a minute.

But I don't know why they couldn't be consolidated under Lowell Mellett as well as under any other managing editor. Only, somehow, he's made himself unpopular.

Price Is Boss Censor

Byron Price officially is our boss censor. He's mild and intelligent, but not constructive. In the last war George Creel nominally was censor, but he wasn't so censorial as he was a pro-Yankee publicity-lite and a cracking good one. I served under him in Argentina, and up and down the South American west coast.

Those papers, down there, took his news, and it WAS news, in preference to our UP's and INS's and AP's—and they were prompt to abolish it at the war's end because they didn't like what they considered its competition.

Well, it WAS competition, of a sort. I don't believe it would be a good thing, under long-run government management.

I'm for independent news, of course. But Lowell Mellett's the sassiest of the outfit.

Factographs

A sales tax of thirty-three and one-third percent is placed on practically all cosmetics sold in the United Kingdom, the department of Commerce reports.

The sun sweeps up 110,000,000 tons of hydrogen from space each second and uses it as fuel, according to a new theory.

The first steamship to cross the Atlantic was the Rising Sun, in 1818. Built in England, it voyaged to South America.

Fish are distinguished from most animals by ability to change their temperatures with their environments.

Norton Explains Non-Highway Use In Gas Rationing

Users Don't Have To Register But Must Fill Out Certificate

Non-highway uses of gasoline, such as farm tractors and other farm equipment, stoves, furnaces, pumps, stationary engines, cleaning and dyeing establishments, portable motors, but not including inboard motorboats, are not restricted under the gasoline rationing program, F. Alton Norton, special field representative of the fuel rationing branch of the OPA, announced yesterday.

Such users of gasoline do not have to register at the schools but when purchasing gasoline they must fill out the certificate, Form OPA 8-510, Norton said.

Norton explained that these certificates will be in the hands of gas station operators and must be executed at those places by the user.

The complicated gas rationing program got under way in the county schools yesterday and those who were unable to get the information they sought at the schools obtained it at the new headquarters of Allegheny County Rationing Board No. 1-1 in the Union City building, Norton was on hand throughout the day answering questions fired at him by numerous persons seeking gas rationing information.

While Norton was kept busy, so were members of the rationing board and their clerks, who are handling the rationing of sugar, tires, tubes and typewriters.

Registration centers in the schools will be open today from 2 to 6 p. m., and tomorrow from 2 to 6 p. m. Shift workers at industrial plants may obtain rationing cards tomorrow between 9 a. m. and noon at any public junior or senior high school.

Brings Destroyer Losses to 77. The attack, carried out in an effort to insure passage of supplies to Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis forces in Libya, apparently was made by planes from newly reinforced bases in Crete, Greece and the Dodecanese islands.

The losses brought to seventy-seven the total of British destroyers sunk since the war began. Britain began the war with 163 destroyers, so which the fifty obtained from the United States and an undischarged number of new ones have been added.

The Lively was of the Lightning class and was completed in 1940. The Kipling and Jackal, both of the Lively class, were finished in 1939.

To Have Training Academy. Just where the training academy will be located is an army secret, but there is a rumor that it will be at Port Meyer, Va.

As for uniforms, about the only certain thing that can be learned is that there are to be uniforms and they'll likely be khaki. Designs and models have already been made up, but they're being kept under lock. That there are men at work on this problem was disclosed when it leaked out that they had forgotten that women wear such items (usually) as panties, girdles and nighties. Doughboys sleep in their undies or as-is.

Senate Passes Bill

War Stimson will make the appointment.

The appointee will be the "director" of the corps, with rank equivalent to that of a major in the army. Her salary will be $3,000 a year plus certain other allowances.

Under the director will be assistant directors, likely one for each of the nine army areas. In addition there will be one officer actually referred to in the bill as "headquarters" and "auxiliaries" and on town to the $21-a-month doc-pri-nte.

It is understood that to get the Women's Corps started, from twenty to thirty women will be selected from each army corps area for training, probably about a six weeks' course, as the initial officer personnel. After that it will be "come on, this, sign up." Future officers will be selected from the personnel.

Twenty Persons Apply To Local V.F.W. Post For Service Star Flags

Twenty persons have responded to the appeal made by Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, requesting parents with sons or wives with husbands in any branch of the United States armed services to make application for service star flags. Charles K. Dyche, service star chairman of the post, announced yesterday.

The rules also apply to parents with daughters who are nurses in the service, Dyche said.

In a number of instances Dyche said applicants omitted their addresses and this is necessary before the requests can be forwarded to national headquarters of the V.F.W. in Kansas City, Mo.

Each application must be accompanied by the name and address of the man or woman in the service, the outfit, name of ship or camp or if the person is known to be on a foreign shore or the high seas. The full name of the parent or wife and local address is also required.

Cards later will be mailed to the applicant by the V.F.W. from Kansas City.

There is no charge made for the service flags, Dyche declared.

Charles M. Swires Dies In Memorial Hospital

Charles M. Swires, 53, Mt. Lake Park, died at 7 o'clock yesterday morning in Memorial hospital after an illness of two months. He had been a patient in the hospital since April 29.

A son of the late Noah H. and Mary Elizabeth Swires, he was a native of Mt. Lake Park. He was a miner by trade but was retired after an accident about fifteen years ago.

Mr. Swires was a veteran of the First World war, a member of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, Knights of Pythias, Oakland; Oak Lodge, No. 8, I. O. O. F., Mt. Lake Park; and the United Brethren church in Loch Lynn.

Funeral services will be held at the church Thursday with burial in Pleasant Valley cemetery.

Mr. Swires never married and has no immediate survivors. His nearest relatives are a brother-in-law, S. S. Groves, Bedford Valley, Pa.; and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Nora Swires, Loch Lynn.

Thomas J. Graham Rites Will Be Held Here Today

Funeral services will be held at St. Patrick's Catholic church today for Thomas J. Graham, 426 Baltimore avenue, who died suddenly Sunday night at his home. Requiem mass will be conducted.

After the services, the body will be taken to St. Paul's chapel where it will remain until Thursday morning when it will be shipped to Boston, Mass., for burial.

A native of Cambridge, Mass., Mr. Graham was educated in the parochial schools there and at Boston college. At Gracely hospital, Detroit, he studied general anesthesia. For fourteen years he was employed in Norfolk, Va., hospitals and three years ago came to Cumberland to assume the position of chief anesthetist at Allegheny hospital. He was regarded as one of the leaders of his profession.

Some of the 30,000 feet of space in the Equitable building will be released as soon as possible, according to Baltimore regional manager James H. Gilman, and all will be made available by May 30.

The consolidation—made possible, Mr. Gilman said, by the substantial recovery of the great majority of HOLC's once-distressed borrowers—will reduce the number of regional offices throughout the country to eight.

The Baltimore region includes Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. The New York regional office is located at 2 Park avenue with the national headquarters of the HOLC, moved there from Washington last September.

Applications Being Received for Clerks At Police Sub-stations

Applications are being received at the LaVale barracks of the Maryland State Police for positions as sub-station clerks with the organization. Applications may also be made by letter to the State Employment Commissioner, 22 Light street, Baltimore.

The entrance salary is $1,200 a year and age limits are 21 to 40 years of age. Other qualifications include a good physical condition; graduation from a standard high school; ability to operate a typewriter; possession of automobile operator's license and some knowledge of the state motor laws.

Besides the salary maintenance is given while the clerks are on duty. They must reside at the sub-stations.

Carloads handled by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad during the week ended May 9, 1942, totaled 69,136, consisting of 41,619 loaded on line and 27,517 received from connections. This was an increase of 5,815 over the same week of last year when the total was 63,321, comprising 41,602 loaded on line and 21,719 received from connections.

During the previous week (the week ended May 2) the total was 70,342, including 42,340 loaded on line and 28,002 received from connections. Carloads handled during the same period of 1930 were 66,817 made up of 44,885 loaded on line and 21,932 received from connections.

Submarine Sinks Freighter in St. Lawrence River

Attack Is First Enemy Operations Reported in Canadian Waters

OTTAWA, May 12 (AP)—The sinking of a freighter in the St. Lawrence river in the first enemy submarine attack ever reported in those waters was announced today by Navy Minister Angus MacDonald.

The St. Lawrence is navigable for large ocean vessels in the broad 500-mile stretch between Quebec and its mouth, where big Anticosti Island separates the river estuary from the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Nearly two months ago Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King expressed fears that U-boats would operate in both the gulf and the river.

The attack occurred yesterday, MacDonald disclosed, and forty-one survivors have been landed.

"The situation regarding shipping in the river is being closely watched and long-prepared plans for its special protection under these circumstances are in operation," the minister said.

He did not say where the sinking occurred in the river, and gave no other details.

"Any possible future sinkings in this (St. Lawrence) area will not be made public in order that the information of value to the enemy may be withheld from him," MacDonald's statement said.

"It is felt, however, that the Caradian public should be informed of the presence of enemy U-boats in Canadian territorial waters and they are assured that every step is being taken to grapple with the situation."

During the last war some ships were sunk within sight of the Nova Scotia coast, but none in the Gulf of St. Lawrence or the river.

COUNTY P-TA COUNCIL SELECTS DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE

Mrs. Frank Moss was appointed delegate for the Allegany County Council of Parent-Teacher Association award at the meeting of the Pennsylvania Avenue Parent-Teacher Association meeting held last evening at the school.

She will attend the conference at College Park, June 23, 24 and 25. The award was won by the Pennsylvania Avenue association for having the quota of delegates attend each county council meeting throughout the year. The choice was given to attend either the College Park conference or the state convention to be held in Salisbury, with all expenses paid by the council.

The Pennsylvania Avenue association also voted to send Mrs. J. W. Whittington as another delegate with Mrs. Moss.

It was decided to hold a festival early in June the date depending on the rationing registration at the school. Mrs. Moss was appointed chairman and will be assisted by the following committee: Mrs. Lee Bailey, Mrs. Margaret Taylor, Mrs. Whittington, Mrs. E. L. Keefer, Mrs. Chester Brant, Mrs. Mildred Payne, Warren Squires, electrician and Miss Mildred Beck, cashier.

A nominating committee was appointed with Mrs. Moss as chairman, Miss Mildred Beck, Mrs. Rebecca Daugherty and Miss Lulu Blonsky.

Mrs. Belmont Athey was appointed chairman of the summer round-up committee for pre-school children, with Mrs. Margaret Taylor assisting.

May 21 was set for the date of the final meeting of the home room representative group which will be held in the form of a picnic. The place to be announced later.

State Motorists Registering for Gas Rationing

Garrett County only One in Maryland Exempt from OPA Order

BALTIMORE, May 12 (AP)—Maryland — except for lucky Garrett County — began to register for a limited amount of gasoline today as rationing officials said the fifty per cent reduction in gasoline supplied to filling stations would prevent any distribution to non-qualified persons.

Certain classes of motor vehicles are exempt from the gasoline rationing but the majority of the state's passenger car drivers will be required to show ration cards to get gasoline after 12:01 a. m. Friday, May 15.

The filling station operators need to show gasoline rationing tickets to get a new supply of gasoline as the case with sugar.

Supply Cut 50 Per Cent
But, OPA rationing officials said today, the fifty per cent cut in the gasoline supply available to the operator would provide him with only enough fuel for those entitled to it under the rationing rules.

They said they were confident all filling station owners would comply with the regulations.

If a station owner sold gasoline to persons not entitled to the fuel, the officials said, it would deplete his stock early and such cases, they added, would be subject to check for possible violations.

Rationing officials asked all motorists to accept the rationing card given them by the registering teachers. If the motorist feels the card is not sufficient for his actual needs, he should appeal through the local rationing board.

Machinery was set up in Baltimore throughout the state to expedite gasoline registration by providing experts on hand to solve any questions posed by registrants which the teachers could not answer.

Cards Good to July 1
The ration cards issued by the registrars will be good for use between now and July 1 when a permanent rationing system is to replace this temporary arrangement.

Under the present system, there are five ration classifications. These are A, B-1, B-2, B-3 and X. The A card is for the driver who doesn't use his automobile for business. He is allowed seven units of gasoline at three gallons per unit for consumption between now and July 1.

B-1, given to drivers who use from five to ten miles per day for business, allows eleven units. Card B-2, for those with a business mileage of 10-14, contains fifteen units. Card B-3, containing nineteen units, will go to those using their cars above fifteen miles per day on a daily average computed over the whole week.

Class X included doctors, nurses and others. An unlimited supply of gasoline is available for this group. Leo H. McCormick, acting regional OPA director, said today that although unlimited gasoline was available for official governmental use all federal, state and local officials would not qualify for the X class.

Rationing officials said the mileage claims must be sworn to by the registrant and a $10,000 fine and ten years imprisonment were provided for violators.

TOURISTS WILL BE GIVEN ENOUGH GAS TO RETURN HOME

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP)—The Office of Price Administration reversed a phase of its gasoline rationing policy today and promised tourists throughout the eastern seaboard enough gasoline to get home on — plus a ration card.

Yesterday, the OPA urged all tourists within the rationing area to get home if possible before rationing begins Friday, saying they would be able to buy only the twenty-one gallons of gasoline permitted for the May 15-July 1 period and an "A" ration card.

Today, however, Paul O'Leary, acting deputy OPA administrator in charge of rationing, ruled that tour-

People of Populous East Gas Up In Final Splurge before Rationing

Many Drivers Give Up in Disgust and Quit Using Cars

(By The Associated Press)
The people of the populous East rushed up in one final splurge Tuesday amid scenes and comment like those which preceded that last great period of drought—prohibition.

This time, however, people went for gasoline, not liquor.

In the greater portion of seventeen Eastern states from Maine to Florida motorists trooped to their local rationing boards to make their pleas for gasoline cards which would entitle each to a trickle or a tankful according to his legitimate needs.

Many drivers plagued by earlier rationing and the problem of war-time motoring, just gave up in disgust and put their jalopies on stilts for the duration. Gladys Swarthout, the opera singer, said she had done just that with her Rolls Royce and all she needed was an "A" card—three gallons a week—to get her to the railroad station at Redding, Conn., in her station wagon.

Stations Sell Out
Likewise Gene Autry, the singing cowboy, decided the minimum was all he needed so long as the ists, students and teachers away from home on Friday could get the basic rationing card; then, when they are ready to go home, local rationing boards are authorized to grant them enough supplementary ration to get them there.

The ruling, it was understood, was made chiefly with the Florida tourist trade in mind. However, it applies throughout the ration area.

hung up the "no gas today" signs and hoped for additional supplies of fuel before rationing begins next Friday.

The folks sneaking a last vacation on the beaches of Florida had a bad twenty-four hours, faced with the prospect of stretching twenty-one gallons they were legally entitled to after Friday into journeys home of hundreds of miles.

But today the Office of Price Administration ruled that tourists, students and teachers away from home on Friday could obtain from their local boards enough supplementary rationing to get them home.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who gets around, found the gasoline rationing not too great a worry. She said in Boston she had found she could still ride a bicycle and that she could attend to many tasks about her Hyde Park residence on horseback. She added that while the family beach wagon was available, all other Roosevelt cars are restricted by rationing.

There was something of a stew at Chicopee, Mass., when it developed that WPA workers were being issued "X" cards, permitting unlimited purchases, on grounds they were government workers. The local schools superintendent thought the OPA probably would look into the matter.

Plenty of Gas

At Albany, N. Y., Marlinus Hoogkamp, an ordained clergyman, who sells religious books and pamphlets, returned his "X" card on grounds that while he was doing God's work, it was voluntary and besides, he didn't have a church.

It was estimated there were about 8,500,000 automobile owners in the seventeen coastal states and the District of Columbia and the OPA calculated that about one-third of those applying for rationing cards would be classified as "non-essential" and limited to twenty-one gallons during the forty-seven-day period from May 15 to July 1. After that a regular system of rationing will be set up.

Registration will continue through Thursday.

Cause of the gas drought, of course, was restricted transportation due to the exigencies of war. Officials said there was plenty of gas—but no way to get it to the customer.

The longest welded pipeline in the world is now pouring oil into North Carolina from the Gulf, doing the work of 10 tankers.

GAS RATIONING WILL CURTAIL CONVENTION OF STATE FIREMEN

FREDERICK, Md., May 12 (AP)—Effect of gasoline rationing on attendance at the annual convention of the Maryland State Firemen's association was under consideration by local officials of the organization.

The meeting, to be limited to one day, will be held here June 24, and will be streamlined to do away with all parades and frills.

B. R. Benson, III, state secretary, reported the executive committee would recommend as soon as the sessions begin the suspension of by-laws in order that business could be dispensed with in one day.

Speeches will be cut short, and all officers and committees were asked to have reports ready in writing the morning of the convention.

Benson asked member companies to send as few delegates as possible but urged that all be represented. The association believed, he said, that local departments should not be weakened because of possible emergencies.

"We also promise to give the next real convention to Frederick, and at that time hope to celebrate our golden jubilee plus the successful completion of the war," Benson's letter said.

Much of Post-War Responsibility To Fall to Women, Legislators Hear

National Order Begins Fourth Annual Convention in Annapolis

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 12 (AP)—To the women of the future would fall much of the responsibility of determining policy in the post-war era. The National Order of Women

Legislators was told today. Meeting in the Maryland Senate Chamber, representatives of ten state orders opened their fourth annual convention and devoted much of the initial program to a forum discussion of "post-war planning."

"We must strive to maintain those things for which the war is being fought," Miss Lavinia Engle, Maryland delegate and field director of the Social Security Board, told the group in the opening discussion period.

Women Will Have Part

"The basic structure of government administration must always be preserved and intelligent women legislators are going to play a prominent part in post-war politics," Mrs. S. Grover Rich, of Salt Lake City, Utah, vice-president, declared.

"Their numbers held down by transportation problems," the crowd attending the first sessions was small. Mrs. Rich presided in the absence of President Anna P. O'Neill of Akron, Ohio.

The national vice-president, referring to the Utah chapter, reported "some forty women legislators are actively engaged in determining legislative policy in our state and have a definite importance in every political move made there."

Other spokesmen stressed the importance of seeing "intelligent women, of high ideals and resourcefulness" in various state legislatures, pointing out numerous housewives had gained reputations for their excellence in legislative fields within their states.

Will Elect Officers

Tomorrow morning the women legislators elect officers and hear an address by Gov. O'Connor before recessing to visit the United States Naval Academy in the afternoon. While at the academy, the legislators will view a regimental midshipmen parade.

Later they will be guests of Governor and Mrs. O'Connor at a reception in the executive mansion before convening at Carvel Hall for the annual banquet. Attorney General William C. Walsh will be principal speaker.

Maryland women attending the convention include E. W. Rietau, former Maryland State Senator and president of the state chapter; Mrs. Vesta Carey and Mrs. Dorothy Phippen, Baltimore legislators; Mrs. St. George Barber, Annapolis; Miss Ruth Shoemaker, Montgomery county delegate; Mrs. Lulu Boucher and Miss Elizabeth Doub, Allegany county legislators; Montgomery county.

Frederick Accepts Crisis in Stride Without Hysteria

Editor Describes Conditions of Agriculture Community in War Time

EDITORS NOTE: This is one of a series of articles prepared for the Associated Press by the editors of Maryland newspapers, outlining war effects in each community and how the community is solving those problems.

By HENRY DECKER
Managing Editor, Frederick Post

FREDERICK, Md., May 12 (AP)—This typical American agricultural community is taking this latest war crisis in stride without hysteria and without a boom.

This heart of the mother country, which sent 1700 men to support Washington in the American revolution, already has sent some 1,400 of her sons into active service, including three of the units in the vanguard of the Twenty-ninth division. Two state guard companies are under arms and at least ten companies of minute men have been organized or are in the process of organization.

McBride with MacArthur

To the list of famous fighting men from Frederick county has been added the name of Brig. General Allan C. McBride, departmental chief of staff with General MacArthur in the Philippines. And to the list of her renowned men of the seas has been added the name of Vice Admiral Russell R. Waesche, commander of the coast guard. General McBride is a native of the Middletown Valley and Admiral Waesche is one of Thurmont's native sons.

Thousands of men, women and children have rallied to every defense and war request. Red Cross and USO drives have gone well over the top. Sales of defense stamps and bonds have been consistently good. At intervals, over-the-counter demands for stamps and bonds could not be met. Merchants have co-operated in offering and urging the sale of defense stamps. School children have bought and are buying thousands of dollars worth of stamps besides building model aircraft for the navy and knitting garments for the Red Cross.

Many Volunteer Services

Few able-bodied citizens have failed to rally to civilian defense needs. Throughout the county, men and women have volunteered as air raid spotters, wardens, auxiliary police, and firemen. About one-fourth of the adults are taking or have taken first aid courses. Hundreds of volunteer firemen are learning to combat incendiary bombs and other bombing hazards.

Four of this city's major industries are working overtime on war contracts. Efforts are being pushed to bring further war industries here. City and county officials are offering inducements to new industries. All machines and tools as well as floor space have been inventoried, looking to establaments of new plants.

Vocational training schools are sending hundreds of men and women into defense industries as welders, metal workers and other skilled craftsmen. It is estimated that at least 500 countians have gone to Baltimore, Hagerstown, Washington and other centers to war industries and government offices. Many of them still reside here and commute.

One of the community's major contributions to the war effort remains to be consummated. "The best farmers in the world" are preparing for the county's greatest single year's farm production. They have accepted the challenge to increase milk, egg, pork, vegetable and other farm production in the food for freedom campaign.

Public and civilian defense officials say Frederick city and county have done more than asked. Farm and urban citizens joined in salvaging scrap metals. Farms reconditioned machinery to last for the duration. Automobile, gasoline, rubber and sugar rationing have been accepted by citizens as part of their contribution to ultimate victory. Employers are meeting their labor shortage problem as best they can. Employees are working overtime willingly. Farmers are anticipating a shortage of harvest labor this summer and are already preparing to employ women, schoolboys and all other available labor.

Whatever the war might bring, Frederick and its citizens will be ready.

A GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY

and party-line service

NOW that we can no longer get all the copper we need for telephone lines, more and more families will find it necessary to accept party-line telephone service. In doing so they will help to conserve a vital war material.

Party-line service is good service when users on the same line are considerate of each other—when they answer their calls promptly—hold the line no longer than is reasonable and always replace the receiver when they have finished.

A good neighbor policy "along party lines" will give better telephone service to more people.

NATIONAL SAFETY AWARD WON BY WESTERN MARYLAND RAILROAD

Charles W. Brown, president of the Western Maryland Railroad, will receive a plaque at an award dinner in Chicago on May 18 as a result of the railroad winning first honors in the 1941 Railroad Employees' national safety contest for class one standard railroads which operated from 8,000,000 to 20,000,000 employee man-hours during 1941.

The award has been announced by the National Safety Council, the contest, which covers only accidental deaths or injuries to employees on duty, is based on Interstate Commerce Commission figures, the National Safety Council announcement stated.

The winner's casualty rate (employees killed plus injured per 100,000 man-hours) was 3.01. This compares with an average rate of 11.16 for the twenty-four railroad units competing in the same classification.

The Western Maryland's winning record was compiled on a basis of thirty-one casualties in 10,305,000 man-hours. The company's progress in improving employee safety is shown by its 1923 casualty rate of 38.77.

The International Great Northern was runner-up to the Western Maryland with a rate of 3.96. The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha was third with a rate of 4.29.

but not without complying with certain conditions; the dealer must first obtain the court's permission and the court may require the dealer to re-fund payments which have been made or file a bond to indemnify the soldier or sailor. If the car is more than half paid for, the court may postpone the re-possession.

In cases involving installment contracts and mortgages, no person can secure possession of the property, except thru a Court of competent jurisdiction. Property bought on an installment plan by one in the armed forces, and partly paid for, cannot be taken from the person, if the soldier can prove he has no way of keeping up the payments.

The act has been declared constitutional by the courts, the courts have said that Congress has the power to prescribe the conditions under which persons in the military service shall be subject to the process of both Federal and state courts. Where there is a conflict between the federal and state law in reference to one in the military service, the Federal Law prevails and the law governing the rights of persons in the armed service are to be liberally construed in favor of the person in the armed service and the operation of the law is not limited to the federal statutes but also suspends the provisions of contracts made with those in the armed service.

Courts Given Wide Powers
The courts are not only given the right to stay or postpone the prosecution of judgments or other legal writs against one in the armed service, but may protect as well any person acting as a guarantor, surety or endorser of one in the armed service.

Where suits are entered and a default is made, the person who entered the suit must file an affidavit that the person sued is not in the military service or make the affidavit at the time a judgment is asked for. Courts may require one entering a suit to give bond or may appoint an attorney and allow the attorney compensation to represent one in the armed forces.

Any one has the right to appear and notify the court or have an attorney notify the court that the person sued or whose property is being re-possessed or seized is in the military service. In the event one in the service is sued along with others who are not in the service, the court may grant the right to proceed against those not in the army and navy and suspend action as to the one in the service or appoint an attorney to represent him.

The period of military service is not included in the statute of Limitations and this applies not only to those in the service but to their heirs, executors or administrators.

Explains Action Procedures
No eviction or distress for rent can be made against the premises of one in the service, where the rent does not exceed $80 per month; where the premises is occupied chiefly for dwelling purposes by the wife, children or other dependents, except by consent of the court. The courts have a right under the act to defer eviction for non-payment of rent for three months. The Secretary of the Navy and Secretary of War have a right to order an allotment of a soldier's or sailor's pay in a reasonable proportion for the payment of rent.

Where rights are not prejudiced and the ability of one in the armed forces is not affected and where it is necessary to conserve property the courts may inquire into all the facts, including any independent income one in the armed service may have and order sales and foreclosures.

Where one in the military service is affected by a tax sale, the consent of the court is necessary and the sale may be stopped for a period of six months after the termination of military service or in order to protect the physical property the court may order a sale and the right to redeem is extended for six months beyond the termination of military service.

To substantiate this argument, they pointed to the fact that women and children who had no connection with the plant had fallen prey to the typhoid epidemic, but this was answered in part by evidence that many of these persons had drunk water from the same spring from which the brickyard workers were furnished water. There were other polluted water sources, the company pointed out.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

IF THERE had been any doubt in Tibby's mind as to whether or not Marg was in love after the crack-up that made her a heroine, it was wiped away in the days that followed. Marg went around in a sort of rosy fog, her eyes dreamy, her thoughts far away. She still wore that new look that Tibby knew came from some inward happiness too wonderful to reveal, the look of a woman in love and loved in return.

Tibby was glad that Marg was so happy, but if its cause came from what she suspected, it was a futile happiness that could not last. Tibby wanted to say something to her friend, but since Marg had not confided in her, that was an exceedingly difficult thing to do. Besides, why not let Marg have her happiness a little while? Surely that could do no harm to anyone. Tibby had problems of her own, too.

She had been able to put aside, for the time being, the unexpected and startling remark that Wayne Courtwright had made when he phoned the night of the accident, but it had remained in the back of her mind, troubling her more than she would have cared to admit. He had said that she was on HIS mind all of the time lately, adding that although it was not the time to say it, he meant it.

Tibby did not suppose he was a man who said such things unless he did. But he couldn't—she could not let him. There was Steena, who considered Wayne her special property, as she had given Tibby to understand without reservations. And Tibby, herself, had resolved that the flying lessons must not lead to anything personal. She did not, of course, know that Wayne had made this same resolution, only to find now that he wanted to break it.

She thought of postponing her next lesson, but that would only be just that—postponement. She was getting along so nicely now—in a short while Wayne had promised that she should solo—that she could not give up the lessons. He would think rightly that it was most ungrateful of her if she did. No, there was nothing to do but face it, which she would do. What if Courtwright had made such an unexpected remark. It might not contain as much meaning as she was putting into it. What if he had had her on his mind a lot lately? Maybe he just meant as a pupil, because of their mutual interest in flying.

But Tibby knew she was only kidding herself, and not doing too good at that. She knew it as soon as she saw her instructor again when she went to take the lesson that she had decided might as well not be postponed.

He was waiting for her and said,

"I was afraid you might not come today." As he had that first time, only with a difference.

She said, much as she had that first time, too, "I wouldn't miss my lesson for anything." Lightly, gayly, yet making it the lesson that was most important. "Why should you think I wouldn't come?" Perhaps it would have been better if she had not asked that. That was always Tibby's way, face facts, get them out in the open and over with.

"You hung up on me the other night." His gray eyes reproved her, but his handsome mouth wore its amused expression, for indeed, it was a new, and therefore an amusing, experience to have had a girl hang up on him.

"I didn't mean to!"

He was amused, too, by the flood of color sweeping over her pretty face. Did she know how becoming it was—and intriguing—a girl who actually could blush without benefit of drug store preparations?

"I presume that you could not talk, so you are forgiven. Was that young doctor of yours still there?" Wayne intended to get this young man placed, much as Tommy had endeavored to do the same with him, without any preambles. He had decided that the reason Tibby had refused so bluntly that evening to take a ride with him was because she had thought the doctor might put in an appearance. Wayne knew, from her surprise and relief when he had, that she had not been sure. He had gathered that they were friends of long standing from the same small mid-west town. Was there anything more between them? He meant to get this settled definitely, too, in short order.

Tibby said, her color still high, "Yes, Tommy was still there." Should she tell him that Steena had been there also? Before she could, had she decided to do so, he asked her another direct question.

"Are you engaged to this young man, my dear?" In spite of its directness, it was put in such a way that one could not take offense. Wayne was expert at putting things thus when he chose, and at the same time so that just as direct an answer was imperative.

"No," Tibby said, "I'm not." She might have added, that she could have been, but then she would have had to have added, as well, that she couldn't, since Tommy had first proposed, then withdrawn the proposal. The memory of that still smarted.

"That's good," Wayne Courtwright made no attempt to hide his relief. "I don't mean that he did not seem a most estimable young man—if a trifle young—but I am glad that you are not going to marry him. Tell me one thing more while we are on the subject." His eyes smiled into hers. "Are you engaged to be married to anyone?"

Surprised and startled again, although by now she should have been getting used to his high-handed way of dealing with everything. Tibby said why, no, she wasn't.

"I'm glad to have that settled, too. Then there really is no reason why we cannot be friends, as you agreed, only to refuse to act accordingly."

"But I didn't mean to . . . to act unfriendly!"

"You refused to have something to eat or drink with me after the last lesson. You practically shut the door in my face when I came to bring you some books. You refused flatly to go for a ride, although you would not give any reason. You sat on the edge of your chair as though eager for me to go. . . . Oh, you were polite enough to satisfy Miss Emily Post, maybe." His accusations took on a bantering tone. "But that does not satisfy me. When I asked you to be friends I meant it, just as I meant all the other things I said, my dear. I cannot get you off my mind, although I realize it is too soon to say it. There are lots of things I may say later, now that I know there's no reason why I shouldn't but, meantime, well, can you give me any reason why you won't be friends?"

Tibby had the answer to that, but how could she give it? She could not say, "I cannot be friends with you because I know Steena would not like it." After all, if Tibby was not engaged to anyone, neither was Wayne engaged to Steena. If he felt he could be friendly with more than one girl it was hardly up to Tibby to tell him he couldn't.

"There's no reason why we can't be FRIENDS," she admitted, but she said it in such a way that he would know that they could not be anything more. She knew it was a dangerous admission, for hadn't he told her as plainly that the time might come when he would want more than friendship? He had said it was too soon for more than that. She knew that he did not know yet himself how much more than friendship he might find he wanted of her. And Tibby found now that she wanted to be friends with him. Yes, whether Steena liked it or not. He had been so very kind to her, although that was not the only reason. She admired him immensely; she liked him as a person. Being human, she was not unaware of the compliment he paid in seeking her friendship. Being feminine, she could not help being pleased, even flattered.

He said, very much as Tommy had to Steena, "It is, then, an agreement. We are friends—for the present. We shall behave as friends toward each other. Shall we also shake on it?"

He held out his hand. Tibby gave him hers. They shook solemnly, as two people sealing a dual pledge, even flattered.

Explorers Hand Paw Paw 5 to 3 Conference Loss

Fort Hill Handed First Place--Allegany Trims Hyndman 8-4

TRI-STATE CONFERENCE

STANDING OF SCHOOLS	W.	L.	Pct.
LaSalle	4	1	.800
Paw Paw	3	2	.600
Allegany	2	3	.400
Hyndman	1	4	.200

LaSalle High's Explorers and the Allegany High Campers scored revenge victories in the Tri-State interscholastic baseball conference here yesterday, LaSalle topping the Paw Paw (W. Va.) high outfit 5-3 at Community Park and Allegany drubbing Hyndman (Pa.) high 8-4 at Campobello.

Paw Paw's setback sent Fort Hill's Sentinels, who were idle, into first place, with the West Virginians and LaSalle going into a tie for the runner-up spot. Allegany's triumph moved it out of the cellar with Hyndman taking over the basement position.

The Explorers, in squaring accounts for an 18-1 defeat suffered at Paw Paw, were never in danger. In the first four innings, they grabbed a 5-0 lead behind the fine pitching of Johnny Small. However, in the first of the fifth, Paw Paw combined errors by Jim Laffey and Bob Stakem with a home run by Taylor for all of its markers.

Third Win for Small
Small, in marking up his third straight victory, allowed six hits, in defeating Allegany and Hyndman by 9-2 scores and Paw Paw, the LaSalle moundman has given up only ten blows.

The Explorers made their initial counter in the first on a walk to Laffey followed by Barney McGinn's double. McGinn drove in two more runs in the third when he tripped after Ray Schmitz had doubled and Laffey had walked. George Grebe's single, John Morrissey's one-base rap and Small's two-bagger produced LaSalle's other tallies in the fourth.

Taylor of Paw Paw, in addition to his homer, connected for a single and had a perfect day at the plate. Sidney Pankhouser, Paw Paw's starting hurler who was relieved by Taylor after three innings, also had two hits.

McGinn, with his double and triple, was the only LaSalle batsman with more than one safety. The Explorers were checked by Relief Hurler Taylor, who in three innings didn't allow a hit and struck out six.

AHS Makes Hits Count
Allegany's West Siders and Hyndman each had seven hits but the Campers made their blows count to get revenge for a 13-3 shellacking received in the Pennsylvania town in one of the conference openers.

Milt Athey went the route for Allegany, striking out five and giving seven bases on balls. Glen Evans, Hyndman's elbow, issued only one walk and fanned seven.

Three extra-base blows marked Allegany's attack. In the first inning, Don "Lefty" Lee doubled to score Bob Williams, who had singled and stolen second, for the first run.

In the third, Athey opened the inning with a double and scored on John Reynolds's single. Lee and Louis Stutcher were both safe after grounding to the pitcher. On both occasions, the ball was played home with Reynolds, who had stolen second, holding up at third. Francis Derrmer then delivered the payoff punch—a justly double—to drive in three markers.

Paw Paw Game Advanced
The Campers' other runs came in the sixth. Joe Naughton singled and took second on a passed ball. Baker walked and both runners advanced on a passed ball. Catcher Jimmy Hess was hit by a pitched ball and Athey singled to complete the damage.

Hyndman's first counter, in the first, was the result of Glen Evans's single, James Pick's single, a fielder's choice and Ray Hime's safety. The other Hyndman tallies, coming in the sixth, were the result of three walks, a passed ball and singles by Walter Harden and Dorsey Stahlman.

Athey was the only Alleganian with more than one hit while Glen Evans led the Hyndman attack with two blows. Roy Evans's double was the Pennsylvanians' only extra-base bingle.

After the game, Coach Hubert Radcliffe of Allegany announced that the Campers' conference game with Paw Paw, scheduled Friday at Paw Paw, had been moved up to

Pirates Bow 7-3 As Giants Turn In Triple Play

Cliff Melton Attains His Fourth Triumph of Season, 7-3

NEW YORK, May 12 (AP)—The New York Giants smothered the Pittsburgh Pirates with the season's first triple play and a pair of potent rallies today to help Lefty Cliff Melton attain his fourth triumph 7-3.

Melton allowed only seven hits, but made a faltering start by letting the Buccaneers punch three of them for two runs in the first inning—Bob Elliott driving both across with a single.

Then the Giants knocked out Southpaw Ken Heintzelman with a five-hit four-run barrage in the third inning.

A three-bagger by Vince DiMaggio led to the Pirates' other run in the sixth and tightened up the game for the Giants' spectacular triple play in the seventh stanza.

John Lanning, who had relieved Heintzelman, led off with a double and Pete Coscarart was awarded first base on interference when Catcher Hank Danning tipped his bat. Both runners sprinted as Frankie Gustine lined a three and two pitch to Second Baseman Connie Rikard, who tossed to Shortstop Bill Jurgens in time for him to step on second and then tag Coscarart.

The Giants put the game out of reach with three runs in the eighth. The box score:

Pappy-in-Law "Sick" over Billy Conn's Broken Hand, Ringsider at Bout Says

By DUKE MORAN

PITTSBURGH, May 12 (AP)—Jimmy Smith, the punchin' pappy-in-law, probably cost Heavyweight contender Billy Conn $125,000 or more in their family "kitchen clouting" and he's "sicker" about it than if the money came out of his own pocket—at least that's what one of Jimmy's closest friends said today.

Billy fractured his left hand on pappy-in-law's head and suffered sundry cuts and bruises in the "one-rounder" in the Smith kitchen Sunday night. But the most serious injury inflicted on Billy was the loss of a chance to fight Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis in June or July. Billy's hand will require at least ten weeks to heal.

Rooney Voices Regrets
Veteran fight men figured the Louis-Conn fight would have drawn at least $750,000 of which Billy's share would have been $125,000 or more.

Art Rooney, Pittsburgh foot ball and fight promoter and close friend of both Conn and Smith, a former ballplayer, voiced Jimmy's regrets by remote control, saying:

"You can take my word for it—there's nobody sicker over what happened than Jimmy. I don't think he'll talk about it but I know how badly he feels. Despite what has occurred, recently and in the past, Jimmy always has been rooting for Billy—and he still will be. You mark what I tell you, they'll be pals yet."

"If they hadn't gone into the kitchen to talk things over every thing would have been all right. They had shaken hands and things were going along well. When two hot-headed Irishmen start to talk, somebody usually gets hurt."

Conn May Lose Army Pay
The Conn-Smith eruption followed the christening of the Conn's child, David Philip, and stemmed from Smith's long-standing objection to Conn's marriage last summer to Jimmy's daughter, Mary Louise.

Jimmy, who is crowding fifty, once threatened to "punch hell" out of Conn.
Meanwhile, at Port Wadsworth, N. Y., where Conn has returned to duty, army officers must decide whether Billy will suffer further financial loss—docking of his army pay. If Conn can give the right answers to questions of whether he was on authorized leave, whether he was under the influence of liquor and who started the scrap, he will get that $21 monthly pay.

Phils Top Cards By 3 to 2 Margin

Lanier Chased during Philadelphia Rally in Third Inning

PHILADELPHIA, May 12 (AP)—One rally of four straight singles in the third inning was enough to chase Max Lanier from the mound and give the Philadelphia Phils a 3-2 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals today.

Lefty Frank Hoerst limited the Cards to six hits, the same number his mates got off Lanier, Howard Krist and Murray Dickson, and was invincible except for the second frame. The Redbirds got their only run then when Enos Slaughter tripped and was followed by a walk to Frank Crespi. Lefty Marion doubled along the left field line, sending both runners across the plate. Walks and Errors Beat Braves, 9-8

Seven Bases on Balls and Three Miscues Aid Cubs

BOSTON, May 12 (AP)—The liberality of Boston Braves pitchers, who issued seven bases on balls, and three infield errors enabled the Chicago Cubs to win, 9-8, today although the Boston team came within a tally of deadlocking the game with a five-run eighth inning uprising.

Chicago put across four runs in the second, third and fourth innings, and when the Braves pushed over three runs in the last of the fourth, the Cubs exploded with another quarter in the fifth. An error, two bases on balls, a double by Clyde McCullough and a two-run single by Relief Hurler Ed Hanyzewski produced the counters.

Boston's five-run eighth resulted from as many hits, including a Chet Ross double and a pinch-hit home run with one on base by Pitcher Jim Tobin. The box score:

West Side Opens City Loop Campaign Today

The West Side Merchants will launch their City Softball League season this evening at 6 o'clock by meeting Keegan's Collegians on the Taylor field. In today's other contest, Lacy's Delicacies will oppose the North End Social and Athletic Club outfit on the North End Playground field.

The race was inaugurated Monday with two newcomers to the circuit—the Collegians and Central Y.M.C.A.—scoring victories. The Collegians stopped the Delicacies in nine innings and the "Y" combination topped North End. The "Y" will be idle today.

The Spotlight by GRANTLAND RICE

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

The Ex-Kids Return

No set of top flight golfers ever came to such quick success as Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen and Francis Quimet who are now tuning up wood and iron for the Hale America show in Chicago later on.

Quimet was only 20 when he took charge of Harry Vardon and Ed Ray in the National open at Brookline in 1913. Hagen was around 20 or 21 when he picked up the title in a stretch drive against Chick Evans at Midlothian in 1914. Sarazen was the youngest of the lot when he cut his way through at Atlantic City later on this month. This will be loaded again with the same old fast action where a fellow by the name of Byron Nelson once more will be hard to handle.

Hogan and Snead haven't had too much luck in P. G. A. meetings, but they will be more vital factors in Chicago later on for the combined navy relief and U. S. O. war funds.

A Long Time Later

Quimet will bring into action a smooth swing that has carried him along some twenty-nine years since he came to the top. Hagen's swing has stood the test just as long. Sarazen and Jones can show only twenty-two years each, although Bobby was a 14-year-old star at Merion in 1916.

These four men have shown how long a sound swing will last. While none of them swings exactly like another, they all have the same main ingredients of winning form, which includes foot and head action, correct body tuning and live hand action.

Jones is the slowest swinger of the four, Sarazen the fastest—but each was master of his own timing. All four knew the value of head control—of keeping the head "as anchor for the swing," a Jim Barnes phrase.

Quimet and Evans

Another interesting meeting could be developed in the Chicago party by putting Francis Quimet and Chick Evans together for at least one round.

Two of our best amateurs, they have been rivals for nearly thirty years. Both can still play exceptionally well on good days, when cracking 70 is no miracle, outside of championship competition.

There is no telling how many titles Chick Evans might have won with a more skillful putter. Chick's play to the pin was always something to watch. I know of no golfer who ever had finer foot action. He was as light as a dancer on his feet through all types of iron play.

In their two meetings Quimet dropped Evans from the 1919 championship at Oakmont on the thirty-sixth green in one of the

Long Road Trip Provides Tough Test for Bucs

Pirates Have Played 20 of Their First 25 Contests at Home

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, May 12 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, who have upset most everyone's National League calculations by running a surprising second in the early weeks of the season, are about to get the acid test of their first long road trip. The Buccaneers played twenty of the friendly surroundings of Forbes field at Pittsburgh and how they will fare on their present junket, which started in Chicago last Saturday, is anybody's guess.

Frisch Won't Predict

That is, it's anybody's guess except Manager Frank (Onkel Franz) Frisch, who won't predict. "We're a bunch of funny boozes," exclaimed The Flash today. "I wish I had some idea how we would do on the road, but it would take a wizard to make heads and tails out of our gang."

"I've been waiting for weeks for some of these birds to start hitting and Sunday we made twenty-two hits in a doubleheader at Chicago. But did you see what happened? We only made five runs on twenty-two hits and we darn near lost both games."

"But we've got a pretty good ball club. Defensively we're at least fifty percent better than last year and we've been getting some good pitching in places."

Managerial Mystery

Somebody asked Frisch whom he thought the Pirates had to beat to get on top and Onkel Franz shrouded himself in his best managerial mystery with the retort: "I don't think of any particular team, but you know the team that I think has to be stopped."

But a few minutes later he rasped: "Why doesn't somebody bump off those Brooklyn ones in awhile and tighten this race up a little bit?"

Frostburg State Will Have Banquet Tonight

FROSTBURG, May 12—The Frostburg State college's annual men's athletic banquet will be held tomorrow evening at 6:30 in the dining hall of the school dormitory.

The speaker will be a United States Navy officer stationed in Washington, and his remarks will deal with the navy's program of training aviators. The name of the speaker has not been furnished.

Whirlwinds Divide

The South End Whirlwinds, formerly the Lacy Juniors, split a doubleheader this week with the Boone street ten, winning the first game 8-1 and losing the second 9-3. Durb had a triple for the Whirlwinds and Decker rapped two doubles for Boone street in the opener.

Thompson Hurls One-Hitter as Reds Win

Cincinnati Reds Top Dodgers To Open Eastern Invasion

Brooklyn's Loss Bunches Entire First Division of League

BROOKLYN, May 12. (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers to one hit as the Cincinnati Reds opened their season swing with an authoritative triumph that bunched the first division of the National League within a span of four games. The blow that kept Thompson from a no-hitter was a pinch runner, Lehigh, Thompson's roommate, and it also kept the star-old right-hander from a shut-out.

In the sixth inning, Lehigh drew one of the two passes served by the Dodgers during the season and Riggs batted for Lehigh. Pitcher Hugh Casey, he ran a sharp double along the right foul line, sending Reese to second, and a moment later Reese passed home on a fly by Billy Herman.

The Reds made ten hits, but were scoreless by Johnny Allen till fifth, when Rookie Catcher Ray Munno connected for his third run of the season.

Another rookie, Max Marshall, outly obtained from Columbus the American Association, opened sixth with a double and scored a single by Bert Haas. When the Reds also beat out a single, replaced Allen, who was edged with the loss.

Left Kimball and Chet Kehn shed up on the mound for the Dodgers and Kimball was the victor of a final three-run uprising in eighth on doubles by Frank McCormick and Harry Craft, intentional walks to Frey and Lamanno, a single by Thompson.

KEEP YOUR MOUTH SHUT
"TALKING across the table" is considered highly unethical, as thereby you give information to your partner which he is not entitled to possess. Even were that not so, informative remarks about your hand, except by means of the heading of very bad bridge. If you are trying to mislead an opponent, once again you are out of bounds from the standpoint of the proprieties, and if you are speaking the truth, you may find that the information gets used against you by a clever enemy. And it will serve you right.

East did not say a word during the bidding of this deal, but after West led the heart 9 to the J, he could not contain himself. "Here's one you won't make," he exulted.

W. Mark Noble, Boston insurance expert, bent a keen ear to the remark, and then decided upon the correct way to insure himself against defeat. Deciding to count upon East for all of the outstanding strength, and therefore to refrain from finessing either clubs or diamonds, he elected to build a beautiful "Vienna coup."

He ruffed the second heart lead and led to the club A, to deliberately set up East's K, and then ran off his remaining seven spades. As he led the last one, he retained the club 10-9 and the diamond 7, while in dummy he kept the diamond A-K-J, discarding the club Q. East could not discard the club K without making the 10 good, so tossed a diamond from the Q-10-8, whereupon the dummy's three diamonds finished the hand.

In Memoriam

In loving remembrance of Mrs. Annie Norris, who departed this life a year ago May 12th, 1941.

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we love is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

Sadly Missed by Her Son,

Three NYA Shops In County Adopt 24-Hour Schedule

Training of Machinists Is Stressed in Co-Operative Program

First of "Cat-Eye" Shifts Becomes Effective in Frostburg Today

National Youth Administration machine shops located in Frostburg and Cumberland will go on a twenty-four hour schedule, effective this week, due to the increasing need for mechanics in vital war industries.

E. Price Steidling, NYA co-ordinator for Garrett, Washington and Allegany counties, announced last evening.

The new schedule in the Frostburg shop will go into effect today at 11 p. m., while the Cumberland shop will inaugurate the new 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. shift tomorrow.

Seven New Men Added

Steidling said that the set-up is designed to absorb some youths from the sheet metal shops, in the machine shops because of the greater demand for machinists in war industries. He added, however, that sheet metal production work will be continued.

Addition of a new shift will mean the employment of seven extra foremen and instructors in the three shops. In the local shop, located at Paca street and Walnut place, and in Frostburg, an instructor, tool clerk and foreman will be added while in the Lonaconing shop, where the 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. or "cat-eye" shift will be inaugurated Monday, May 18, a tool clerk will be added.

Under the twenty-four hour arrangement, twelve hours will be devoted to board of education training for the youths and a similar number of hours for NYA production work. Under the sixteen-hour schedule, which has been in effect since November, 1941, eight hours were devoted to training and eight hours to production work.

Youths employed in NYA machine shops are required to take four hours schooling and four hours of production work daily for a five-day week of forty hours. The NYA co-ordinator, however, is of the opinion that the shops will be placed on a six-day week in the near future.

Receives Large Order

The Lonaconing woodworking shop is included in the new twenty-four hour schedule to fill an order of 1,300 tables and desks for the United States Army. At that shop sixteen hours will be devoted to production work and eight hours to board of education training.

At the present time the three shops are operating on two shifts, the first from 7 a. m. to 3 p. m., and the second from 3 to 11 p. m.

NYA machine shops in Frostburg and Cumberland each employ ninety persons at the present time. Eighty-five persons are on the payroll at Lonaconing.

Co-operative Program

Steidling said that he was advised by Glen D. Brown, state NYA administrator, to put the three county shops on a twenty-four hour schedule within a period of two weeks from May 7, and no time was lost in putting the order into effect a week in advance of the proposed deadline.

The board of education provides the instructors for training, the NYA handles the production and the United States Employment Service does the placement work under the Allegany County Co-operative War Training Program.

Adults between eighteen and fifty-five years old, who are interested in getting training for types of work needed in war industries are requested to contact any of the three agencies.

Need Is "Critical"

Daniel R. Staley, manager of the Cumberland office of the United States Employment Service, yesterday said that the need for machinists in war industries is "critical" and landed the action taken by the NYA, which already has turned out many experienced mechanics for the Palmdale and Glenn Martin airplane factories.

Cumberland and Pennsylvania railroad, Kelly-Springfield plant and other plants engaged in producing machinery and implements vital to the winning of the war. The demand for machinists is greater than the number available, according to Staley, and the local office could place approximately fifty at the present time if they could be found.

Meyers To Interview Community Chest Campaign Officials

George A. Meyers, president of Celanese Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, will interview three Community Chest campaign officials about the drive in a forum broadcast scheduled over WTBO Friday from 7:15 to 7:30 p. m.

Officials who will discuss the campaign and the services of the eleven member agencies with Meyers are Harold W. Smith, president; Dr. Frank M. Wilson, chairman of the executive committee; and Harvey H. Weiss, treasurer.

Woman Fractures Leg In Fall at Her Home

Falling on the stairs at her home, Mrs. Nora C. Anderson, 53, 316 Mountain View drive, suffered a fracture of her right leg between the knee and ankle. She was admitted to Allegany hospital at noon yesterday.

IN A. H. S. PLAY — The part of flighty Mrs. Rimplegar will be portrayed by Virginia Lee Robinson in the senior class play production, "Three Corners Moon," which will be presented Friday night in the Allegany high school auditorium, under the direction of Miss Catherine A. Barker.

Virginia Lee is not inexperienced in dramatics, having played a leading role in "Elmer," a one-act comedy produced several years ago. She has also portrayed minor characters in "Our Town" and the Christmas show of 1940.

Miss Robinson is also well-known in musical circles. This year she was elected president of the Senior Girls Choral Club. For three years she has been a member of the Mixed Chorus and Musettes.

The positions of circulation manager of the Alcohol Mirror and music editor of the Allegany are also filled by Virginia Lee.

Relief Department Of B. and O. Will Elect Delegates

Fourteen Local Men Candidates for Annual Convention May 25 and 26

Ballots have been sent to members of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Relief Department by which six delegates from the Cumberland Division will be elected to attend the annual convention at Pittsburgh, Pa., on June 25 and 26 at the Roosevelt hotel.

Nineteen names appear on the ballot and fourteen of these are residents of Cumberland. They are:

Franklin R. Cessna, Macon J. Coleman, William O. Droegge, Truman C. Fuller, John R. Greise, Floyd C. Houser, Lawrence A. Hewitt, Peter Lonaconing, William E. McCleary, David S. McMillan, Sylvester Pittman, James Twigg, Carl C. Wagner and William C. Wilson.

The other five candidates are Roy N. Edwards, Martinsburg, W. Va.; James H. Everitts, Brunswick; Champ S. Payne, Cumbo, W. Va.; George E. Siraubach, Keyser, W. Va.; John C. Staub, Brunswick.

Ballots must be received in the office of the superintendent of the Relief department, Baltimore, by noon Thursday, May 21, or they will not be counted.

The delegates will represent members of the Relief department in electing four members of the Advisory committee, one member of the Operating committee, and to fill such vacancies on these two committees as may have been caused by death, termination of service, incapacity, or resignation from either committee by the incumbents.

Officers Re-elected By School Board

Edgar A. Dashiell was re-elected president and Horace P. Whitworth was retained as vice-president at the annual meeting yesterday of the Allegany County Board of Education. Wilbur V. Wilson is the other member of the board.

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, is secretary to the board. William L. Wilson, Jr., and Zebulon Hewitt were re-appointed attorney and auditor, respectively.

Compensation Claim of Typhoid Victim To Go to Appeals Court

Jury Returns Verdict in Favor of Brickyard Workers in Test Case

Maryland's court of appeals will be called upon to decide whether employees of the Mt. Savage brickyard of the Union Mining Company who contracted typhoid fever in an epidemic last summer are entitled to disability benefits under the Workmen's Compensation act, it appeared yesterday.

Counsel for the company indicated that an appeal will be taken from the verdict returned yesterday afternoon by a circuit court jury in the test case of Samuel Blank, 31, of Cumberland. A score of similar cases is pending before the State Industrial Accident Commission, awaiting final determination of the question by the courts.

The jury in the test case deliberated more than two hours before returning a verdict holding that Blank's contraction of typhoid fever was an accidental injury

State Police Are Considering Use Of Two-Way Radio

Will Be Installed in All Patrol Cars If Tests Are Satisfactory

Installation of two-way radios in patrol cars of the Maryland State Police at Barracks C, LaVale, is under consideration, Lieut. Carl Dilling, commanding officer of the Western Maryland area, said yesterday.

Three members of the radio division of the state police were here Monday and will be here again today to continue tests of two-way equipment.

Two-way radios, Dilling said, will enable troopers to talk from car to car or from car to barracks. Heretofore, with the one-way equipment being used, only the radio operator at the barracks has been able to talk to the cars.

Barracks C here and Barracks B in Frederick are the only two state police troops not already equipped with two-way radios. Dilling said, but if tests show such equipment to be practical locally, it will be installed.

First Sgt. Louis Bloom, Corp. M. T. Bohler and Trooper First Class Arthur Burke, of the radio division, Waterloo, conducted tests here Monday and they were very satisfactory. Bohler and Burke will continue the tests today.

Within a week it is expected one of the new radios will be installed in the patrol car of Sgt. John H. Doud, commanding officer of Barracks C, but war priorities may hold up delivery.

When the radios will be installed in other cars here is indefinite but it is hoped to have two or three sets in operation within a month, provided the tests are satisfactory.

Installation of the new equipment will necessitate the erection of a new antenna at the top of the antenna used for the present equipment but so far delivery has not been secured.

Randolph Is Invited To Speak at Banquet Of Luke Local No. 36

Five hundred persons are expected to attend the banquet and dance of Luke Local No. 36, International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, scheduled for Wednesday, May 27, at 8 p. m. at the American Legion home in Piedmont.

Rep. Jennings Randolph, of the Second West Virginia district, and John P. Burke, of Toronto, Canada, international president-secretary, have been invited to speak at the affair.

The committee on arrangements comprises Mrs. Beulah Herman, chairman, Mrs. Emma Stemp, Miss Frances Krumpack, Mrs. Genevieve Shaffer, Miss Catherine Evans, Carlton Bell and Thomas Fischell.

Luke Local is an A. F. of L. affiliate and has 1,300 members. George Carpenter is president of the local.

Deliveries of Milk Will Be Cut to Once Daily in Cumberland

Due to the tire and gasoline shortage, not more than one whole-sale or retail delivery of milk will be made daily, Cumberland dairy owners have decided. The new plan is expected to be in full swing by Friday.

Edgar A. Dashiell, manager of the Farmer's Dairy, said notices are being sent grocery stores they must keep on hand not less than a 24-hour supply of milk, cream and by-products as only one delivery will be made.

Steps are also being taken to reduce route distances. Sunday deliveries already have been curtailed and may be further cut.

Dairymen expect to meet later this week to work out further plans. It has been proposed reducing deliveries to lowly-populated districts to three a week. It is said mileage in some areas is comparatively heavy as compared to the amount of milk consumed.

Jury Returns Verdict in Favor of Brickyard Workers in Test Case rising out of and in the course of his employment, thus entitling him to workmen's compensation for the time he was ill.

The jury upheld the previous decision of the state commission awarding Blank compensation of $16.67 per week from July 2 to September 1. The case was heard in circuit court on an appeal noted by the Union Mining Company.

Blank, represented by I. Duke Arnet, attorney, charged that he contracted the disease as a result of drinking water furnished by the company for its employees. Testimony was presented to the effect that the spring from which the water was obtained was polluted and was later posted by the health department as unfit for drinking purposes.

The company, through Charles Z. Heskett and Harry I. Stegmaler, contended that there was no evidence that the men contracted the disease as a result of drinking the water furnished by the company. It was possible, the company maintained, that Blank and the others could have been infected by other means. (Continued on Page 9, Col. 2)

TRASH COLLECTORS—The 450 students of Easton high school are doing their part to make the Talbot county salvage collection campaign a howling success. Betty Harrison, (left) and Jane Nevins, display a part of their collection of old toothpaste and shaving cream tubes for salvage as essential war materials. The collection will continue indefinitely.

Illustrated Lecture on First Aid Features Scout Leaders' Dinner

Commodore Longfellow Wears Costumes To Put Over His Ideas

Importance of good training in first aid was stressed in an interesting illustrated talk given last evening by Commodore W. E. Longfellow, assistant director of first aid, water safety and accident prevention service of the American Red Cross, at the annual Scout Leaders' Appreciation Dinner of Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, last evening at the Cresapton school auditorium.

Commodore Longfellow illustrated facts concerning first aid by donning various costumes and hats to put over the "What's Under Your Hat?" idea, which was the topic of his talk.

Following his introduction by Prof. John L. Dunkle, master of ceremonies, Commodore Longfellow donned the costume of The Good Samaritan—whiskers, cape, turban and all—in illustrating the idea of serving his fellow men. He stated that he received this inspiration from the Geneva charter, the beginning of the Red Cross.

The 250-plus speaker also illustrated injuries about the home that require first aid treatment by donning various types of women's hats, which drew a chuckle from the guests.

Donning a chef's outfit, including a hat, apron and triangular bandage about his neck, the commodore explained that the bandage was worn as preparedness in case of injuries in the kitchen.

Illustrating an air raid warden's uniform, Commodore Longfellow said that it is important civilians remain indoors during an air raid and pointed out that the tin hat worn for this work is to protect the warden from splinters from bursting bombs.

Tells of Blitz Blanket

The speaker also included a minor's, fisherman's and fireman's hat. (Continued on Page 5, Col. 6)

'Scrap Series' Is Planned To Push Industrial Salvage Program Here

Fifty-Six Industries To Compete in Novel Sectional Contest

Inauguration of a "Western Maryland Scrap Series" to stimulate scrap salvage by industries of the Cumberland area was announced yesterday by Bart J. Lyons, chairman of the Industrial Salvage committee.

Fifty-six industries of this section are included in the contest, with twenty-eight in the "National League" and a like number in the "American League." Object is to see which league can salvage the most scrap this month.

Game Just Starting

The letter announcing the novel competition noted that "in the Big World Series the Axis and the Japs have made a few home runs—but the game isn't lost or over; it's only starting."

"We are all rooting for the home team," the letter goes on, "and right now, you can help them by collecting every bit of scrap steel you have. They need it badly."

"Time is short. The need is great. Let's go."

The report for April, meanwhile, showed approximately sixty 50,000-pound carloads of miscellaneous scrap to have been salvaged last month. In other words, the total was 3,338,107 pounds, or 1,669 tons.

Leading the list was steel, with 1,286 gross tons. Other scrap listed included copper, 13.32 net tons; brass, six net tons; stainless steel, 1.9 net tons; aluminum, 1.9 net tons; paper, 124.5 net tons; burlap, one net ton; rubber, 68.2 net tons; and rags, 10.72 net tons.

The largest contribution was 673,710 pounds of steel by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company while the total for the next highest, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was 672,000 pounds. Other leaders include the Celanese Corporation of America, the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad, the Western Maryland Railway, and the Cumberland Steel Company.

Magistrate Explains Various Provisions of Civil Relief Act

The many requests for information and enlightenment on the provisions of the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act has prompted Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., a member of the Committee on National Defense of Maryland Bar Association, to give a digest of the act's workings.

Magistrate Bruce stated that the purpose of the committee was to protect the rights of those in the armed forces, including those on active duty in the public health service, in the matter of personal possessions at home, wages due, taxes, installment contracts and civil service status. In cases of men leaving in the service there appears unpaid bills, installment contracts, a partly paid for automobile, unpaid wages and suits and judgments.

In all of these cases it is the purpose of the committee to see that

DIES IN CRASH—Ensign David B. Beck, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Karl Beck, formerly of Frostburg, was killed Monday shortly after he had taken off from Rosedale Field, a naval flying base near San Diego, Calif. The Navy department said he was engaged in a routine flight. Beck was commissioned in February after completing his training at Pensacola, Fla. He was born in China where his father is a missionary. Rotarians Hear Winning Oration At Luncheon

Miss Mary Sirna Delivers "America Carries On" at Weekly Meeting

Miss Mary Sirna, senior at the Ridgeley, W. Va., high school, won a rising vote of appreciation from Cumberland Rotarians when she presented an oration, "America Carries On" yesterday at their weekly luncheon meeting in Port Cumberland hotel.

The oration won the West Virginia state oratorical contest conducted by the American Legion when given with other district contestants at Charleston, the capital city. It won a qualifying district contest held previously at Keyser.

The theme told not only how America is now carrying on mightily toward victory but also why it is doing so. The fight today carries all the hopes of human liberty, it was set forth, because all human progress is being challenged by the aggressions of brutal dictators. But here, as before, the speaker declared in the words of Winston Churchill, "We shall not fail."

Miss Sirna was introduced by Melvin M. Heiskell, principal of Ridgeley high school.

Another feature of the Rotary program was a series of "he songs" by the Rev. Walter Simon, the ministerial minstrel of the Frostburg Rotary Club, who was accompanied at the piano by Joseph Williams, of this city.

Announcement was made that the club is contributing its fourth member to the armed forces of the country, namely, Henry Shriver, III, who will leave this morning to join the Three-hundred and thirty-fourth engineers.

Other Rotarians now in the armed services are Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, George Henderson and George Schwarzenbach.

Carl "Bob" Bryson Resigns as Manager Of Maryland Hotel

Carl "Bob" Bryson, manager of the Maryland hotel and cocktail lounge for the past year, has resigned his position and will leave this morning for Boston, Mass., where he will vacation before deciding his future plans.

Bryson has made a host of friends since coming to Cumberland and was a member of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce and Junior Association of Commerce. A farewell party was given by employees of the hotel and cocktail lounge Saturday night at Cottage Inn in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Bryson.

Act Aids Morale of Armed Forces

Members of the armed forces of the nation are entitled to be as free as possible from worry and to know that their rights and the rights of the members of their family are being protected. Any one in the armed forces may apply to the morale officer, who is stationed in every camp and every naval base and with the Coast Guard who in turn will write to their place of residence with reference to any matters demanding attention while men are in the armed forces.

Most of cases so far are with reference to motor vehicles; if one in the service has purchased before being inducted or enlisted an automobile, and is unable to continue payments, and less than one half of the purchase price has been paid, the dealer may re-repossess it. David B. Beck Is Killed in Crash Of Naval Plane

Was Son of the Rev. a Mrs. Karl Beck, Formerly Frostburg Residents

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carter, Frostburg, were notified yesterday that David B. Beck, 22, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Karl Beck, former residents of Frostburg, was killed Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in an airplane accident, shortly after he had taken off from Rosedale Field, a navy flying base, near San Diego, Calif.

Particulars of the accident could not be learned immediately but the Navy Department said officer Beck was engaged in a routine operation at the field.

Commissioned Ensign in February

Beck enlisted in the navy early in 1941 and completed his preliminary aviation training at the naval reserve air station in Anacostia, Washington, D. C. He was then transferred to Pensacola, Fla., where he entered the naval aviation training school. He completed his student training there and was awarded his wings and commissioned an ensign in the United States Navy last February.

Before entering the navy, Beck interrupted his studies at State Teachers college, Frostburg, to accept a position with the National Geographic Magazine, which took him on a year's cruise through the South Sea islands gathering geographic data. He returned to college in 1939 and remained there until he enlisted in the navy.

Beck was born in China, where his father was doing missionary work, attending Kuling-Ki school from 1933 to 1935 and Kuling-American school in China. In late 1935 he came to America and resided in State College, Pa., with his parents. He was graduated from the high school there in 1937.

In September, 1937, the Rev. Mr. Beck accepted the pastorate of the Salem Evangelical and Reformed church in Frostburg and young Beck came to that city with his parents.

Father Is Missionary in China

After remaining in Frostburg, for four years, the Rev. Mr. Beck, returned to China as a missionary and shortly after the bombing of Pearl Harbor last December 7 he was captured by the Japanese army and has not been heard from since.

Besides his parents Ensign Beck is survived by two sisters, Eva and Mae, both of whom reside with their mother in Tiffin, Ohio. Mrs. Beck moved to Tiffin, where she is staying at the Reformed Church Missionary's home, while her husband is in China.

Funeral services will be held in Martinsburg, Pa., Saturday.

John A. Hartman, 59 Dies in Baltimore

Casualty Company Secretary Was Brother-in-Law of Late Mrs. W. W. Hanly

John A. Hartman, 59, secretary of the Maryland Casualty Company, a post which he held for twenty-five years, died yesterday morning at his home, 612 West University Parkway, Baltimore.

Mr. Hartman was a brother-in-law of the late Mrs. Edith Hanly, wife of W. Woodin Hanly, former Cumberland lumber dealer, who left here ten years ago to reside with his son in New York city.

Identified with the Maryland Casualty Company since March, 1899, Mr. Hartman died following an illness of several months, during which he was intermittently at his desk.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mabel Rice Hartman, who is well known in Cumberland, having visited the Hanlys here on numerous occasions; one son, John A. Hartman, Jr., a student at Yale university, and two brothers, Edward A., and Willard Hartman.

Mr. Hartman, a graduate of Baltimore City College, started as a junior clerk in 1899. He served as cashier, assistant secretary, assistant treasurer, comptroller of claims disbursements and secretary. He has held the latter position since November 15, 1916.

Mr. Hartman was recognized as one of the best posted men in the country on the highly technical problems of casualty and surety insurance.

Henry C. Hensel Dies In Corriganville

Henry Charles Hensel, 86, a retired inspector for Cumberland Steel Company, died last evening at 6 o'clock, at the home of his son, Walter, Corriganville.

Mr. Hensel, a native of Germany, and son of the late John and Laura Hensel, came to this country at the age of five and resided in Cumberland until he was retired about six years ago. He was a member of St. John's Lutheran church, Cumberland.

Surviving are the following children:

Walter, with whom he resided in Corriganville; Orlando Hensel, and Mrs. Elbert Burch, all of Corriganville. Alonzo Hensel, Orleans Road, W. Va.; Mrs. Elmo Kauffman, Fort Ashby, W. Va.; Mrs. Frank Reed and Mrs. Ray Gormer, both of Cumberland. Thirteen grandchildren. (Continued on Page 5, Col. 3)
